WAR DECLARED BY INDIANS

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPI) — Indians occupying this tiny hamlet declared war on the United States Sunday after proclaiming it an independent nation seeking recognition by the United Nations.

An FBI agent was wounded in an exchange of gunfire.

"We consider outselves under attack and at war with the U.S., said Russell Means, a leader of the American Indian Movement which has held Wounded Knee since Feb. 27.

Means instructed armed followers to "shoot to kill" FBI agents attempting to enter the hamlet to make arrests.

Honeymoon Ends for $

Times News Services

BRUSSELS — Six of the strongest currencies in Europe ended a 29-year relationship with the U.S. dollar today.

The six countries agreed to "float" their own money on world markets when they reopen seven days from now, after a record 17-day shutdown to give governments time to solve the latest world monetary crisis.

In bank-to-bank trading today, the dollar dipped sharply but recovered strongly in reaction to the revaluing of the West German mark and the six nations decision.

Trading was nervous but fairly brisk. Bankers and money operators appeared to have adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

YEN FLOATING

In Japan, monetary officials said they would continue to float the yen, at least until they saw how the U.S. dollar reacted to the European action.

The six Common Market nations announcing they would join the float included West Germany, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Denmark. Five non-market nations, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Austria and Switzerland, were expected to join before March 19.

Three other market nations, Britain, Ireland and Italy, did not join the float. They already were floating separately on money markets.

In addition to joining the float, West Germany announced it would revalue the mark upward by three per cent in dealings with its European partners.

The two moves were designed to calm the latest international monetary storm that broke last month with a flood of unwanted dollars.

Visitors' Bureau To Fold

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

At an emergency meeting this morning the directors of the Greater Victoria Visitors' Bureau voted unanimously for liquidation of the bureau at the annual meeting to be held at the end of the month.

The move came hard on the heels of the decision of Victoria city council Thursday to cut this year's grant from $60,000 to $51,778. The city also notified the bureau that instead of continuing to pay $2 for every $1 contributed by the bureau's member businesses in 1974 this would be cut to $1 per membership dollar.

Informed of the directors' recommendation for wiping out the bureau, Mayor Peter Pollen said:

"This is a most petulant and short-sighted response. They should be looking at the situation in a much more positive manner."

Director Bob Wright admitted today that part of the bureau's failure had been that its board, while selling well to strangers, had "not done a good selling job in our own backyard."

He said that if the 360 members voted for liquidation at the March-end meeting — and he was assured they would — John W. Hogg of Campbell, Donegani and Wood would be appointed liquidator.

He said there would be a "gradual windup" with the bureau being phased out of existence at the end of the tourist season, Sept. 30.

Ald. Percy Frampton, city representative who also serves as the board's treasurer, asked if the bureau would continue until then if the city had a change of heart and withdrew the grant recently passed.

Davidson said this was an "iffy question" and one that could only be dealt with if and when this happened.

Pollen, informed about this, said the city has no intention of withdrawing its support of the bureau:

"The city of Victoria recognizes the importance of tourism and is doing great things to ensure the accommodation of people coming to Victoria in the form of redevelopment of the Inner Harbor, malls, parks and beautification. Council believes we should work to support the tourist industry but the industry itself should obviously assume its responsibilities by paying a more equitable share of the over-all financing of the bureau."

A car dealer, Pollen said, "Nobody gives money to advertise my business and I employ 97 people. This is of indirect benefit to the city. The citizens of Victoria have given grants to the tourist bureau with virtually no strings attached.

"We have no intention of withdrawing but the industry itself must pay on a more equitable basis with the citizens of Victoria."

In today's resolution passed by the board it was voted that

C.A.S.E. COUNTERS FARMER PROTEST

A demonstration is support of the proposed B.C. Land Commission Act will be held Thursday at 12:30 p.m. on the steps of the legislature just an hour before 3,000 farmers assemble for their protest.

Derrick Mallard, president of C.A.S.E (Citizens' Action to Save the Environment), said today his group will be joined by individuals and other environmental groups concerned about the preservation of farmland in B.C.

The B.C. government, he said, is the first to "take the bull by the horns" in recognizing that the "most important environmental need of all is having sufficient food for our expanding population."

He said he agreed the wording of the act was poor and that the right of appeal "should be included" but added that most farmers are upset only because they can't sell their land for high profits.

Gaullists Hold Power Grip In Close Vote

Times News Services

PARIS — France has given another five-year mandate to the political heirs of the late Charles de Gaulle, but it is certain to be Gaullism with a difference.

Although the Gaullist party emerged from its most formidable election test in 15 years of rule with a majority of at least 29 seats in the 490-seat parliament, the Socialist-Communist left matched the government parties vote for vote — each side apparently capturing 46 per cent of the popular vote in the record poll.

And the Gaullists suffered setbacks in the defeats of Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann and Justice Minister Rene Pleven by younger Socialist candidates. They will almost certainly lose their cabinet posts.

The Gaullist victory averted a constitutional crisis. A leftist majority in the assembly would have been at loggerheads with President Georges Pompidou, whose term runs until 1976, and this probably would have paralysed the government.

With only four districts still outstanding, Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin announced early today that the government parties had taken 274 seats, 28 more than were needed for outright victory.

The combined left had 181 seats, with the Socialists outscoring the Communists by 89 to 73 seats. The left recorded most of the ground it lost in the 1968 Gaullist landslide and regained the workmanlike opposition standing it built up in a 1967 assembly ballot. An extreme right-wing group won three seats.

The centre reformers, led by former presidential candidate Jean Lecanuet and the tempestuous Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber, won 28 seats and had excellent chances of reaching their 30-strong target by the time the election dust has settled.

1,000 Men Off At Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — Just over 1,000 workers at MacMillan Bloedell's Somass sawmill and shingle mill remained off work today in a dispute which erupted Friday over pay rates for mechanics.

Employees and officials of Local 1-85, International Woodworkers of America, were meeting this morning.

E. P. Demens, manager of the company's lumber and shingle production on Vancouver Island, said MB "cannot and will not tolerate the continuation of work disruption by these small, self-interested groups."

He said operations in the Port Alberni area — where the company has four mills and three logging divisions — have been almost constantly involved "in some form of labor strife" since the last coast agreement was signed between timber companies and the IWA.

"Small self-interested groups have attempted to gain concessions for themselves by slowdowns and other forms of wildcat strikes with complete disregard for the interests of their fellow employees, the community, the company and the provisions of the labor contract and law," said Demens.

The company said less than 10 men, carriers, mechanics employed to maintain mobile equipment, refused to work at their regular jobs unless granted special wage increases.

The mechanics have been suspended "until such time as they are prepared to work as required in a normal manner in keeping with the terms and conditions of the master agreement which their officers signed on their behalf."

The walkout began Friday after the company suspended the mechanics. No statement was issued by the Port Alberni IWA.

Teacher Strike Closes Schools In S. Alberta

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Most schools in rural southern Alberta were closed today as 1,300 teachers went on strike to support contract demands.

It was the first strike by teachers in Alberta this year and affected more than 27,000 students in 18 school districts south of Vulcan to the United States border. Schools in the cities of Lethbridge and Medicine Hat were not affected.

The walkout resulted when negotiations on a new contract between the teachers and the Southern Alberta School Authorities Association broke down.

Bill Cousins, a spokesman for the Lethbridge local of the Alberta Teachers Association, said the rural teachers will be supported fully by city teachers.

Bermuda Hunts Two Gunmen

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) — Police sources said today they were convinced two gunmen were involved in the weekend assassinations of Gov. Sir Richard Sharples and an aide as they walked the governor's dog outside his official residence.

Officials also said they believed there was a direct link between the Saturday slayings and the unsolved shooting death almost exactly six months earlier of police commissioner George Duckett.

But police said they did not know of a motive for the killings and so far did not have any definite suspects.

Ian Kinner, the island's chief secretary, was sworn in as governor immediately after the killings. He immediately ordered a state of emergency, which permitted police to detain suspects without official charges or warrants.

Tourists were allowed to leave after they and their luggage were searched and inspected at the airport and at the docks.

Police said they were working on the theory there was special significance in the fact the two government officials were killed at almost the same hour, on a Saturday, six months apart.

Sharples' death came six months and one day after the murder of Duckett, shot Sept. 9 in the kitchen of his home. His 17-year-old daughter Marcia was shot and wounded in the assassination.

Sharples, 56, and his aide, Capt. Hugh Sayers, 25, were gunned down as they walked the governor's pet Great Dane at about 11:45 p.m. (10:45 p.m. EST) at the end of a dinner party for 12 persons. The dog also died in the bursts of gunfire.

Two Scotland Yard detectives in charge of the Duckett killing returned Sunday to Hamilton to investigate the slayings. Another team of seven detectives was en route today from London.

Police sources said late Sunday they were "convinced that two gunmen rather than one" were responsible for the Saturday slayings.

Flareup in Korea As North Opens Fire

PANMONJOM, Korea (UPI) — North Korean troops opened fire on South Korean soldiers killing two and wounding one other in a border clash last Wednesday, the UN command said today.

It was the first fatal incident along the Korean truce front since September, 1971.

The UN said the incident occurred when five South Korean army civil policemen replacing border markers north of Chorwon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul, came under small arms fire from North Korean positions.

At the 337th meeting of the Korean Military Armistice Commission today, North Korean Army Maj. Gen. Kim Pung-sup termed the charge "groundless" and said the South Koreans were engaged in espionage activities inside the demilitarized zone.

U.S. Marine Corps Lt. Gen. Fred E. Haynes said after the initial firing, the North Koreans refused a call by the south that the two be allowed to be evacuated.

Peronist Leads Argentine Polls

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Peronist presidential candidate Hector Campora is well ahead in Sunday's Argentine general election, and still has a good chance of gaining a majority, according to revised figures issued by the interior ministry.

Ministry figures published just before vote-counting was suspended for the night showed that Dr. Campora had won 48.7 per cent of the total vote.

The ministry said this calculation was based on a count of 98 per cent of the votes cast, but an hour later corrected this, saying it based on only about 82 per cent of the total votes.

The turnout appeared to have been around 80 per cent of the 14.1 million registered electors, more than half the population of the country.

Observers said votes still to be counted included many from Buenos Aires province and provincial cities traditionally pro-Peronist, indicating Dr. Campora still had a chance of reaching the 50-per-cent-plus-one total needed to avoid a run-off ballot.

The corrected figures were based on results from 45,085 of the more than 55,000 polling stations, indicating that about 1.5 million votes had still to be counted.

Dr. Campara's major rival was the Radical party's Ricardo Balbin, with 21 per cent of the vote. There were seven other presidential candidates.

BY ANY OTHER . . .

The department of rehabilitation and social improvement will change its name to the department of human resources at the end of the current legislative session, the minister Norman Levi said today.

The new name comes from a suggestion list of over 200 names, Levi said. The formal change will take place through a special act.

Levi said the new name is intended to be "more indicative of the kind of thing we are trying to do with the department."

The suggestions came from people working in the field, he said, and from a survey his department carried out of government departments throughout North America. California has a department of Human Resources, Levi said.

The cost of the change is not expected to be "all that much," the minister said. He added that the B.C. department had had the tongue-twisting name at one time of Department of Rehabilitation, Social Improvement and Human Resources. The last two words had been dropped to make things easier, he said.

The department has also been known in the past as the department of social welfare.

Ads a Headache

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission accused makers of leading aspirin products today of false and misleading advertising. It asked that they devote 25 per cent of future ads to admitting it.

Named in the complaint were the manufacturers of Bufferin, Excedrin PM, Anacin, Arthritis Pain Formula, Bayer, Cope, Vanquish and Midol.

Among the claims which the FTC said were false:

—That Bufferin works twice as fast as aspirin.

—That Excedrin relieves tension and anxiety.

—That Bayer is more effective for relief of minor pain than other aspirin.

Stone Throwers Herd 637 Whales To Slaughter

In the course of a few hours early Sunday a shoal of 637 pilot whales were driven into a narrow fjord on the island of Vaga by stone-throwing islanders in an armada of small boats. Then they were slaughtered with long spears and knives in a gruesome spectacle that has been part of Faeroese life for centuries.

The shoal was one of the biggest since more than 2,000 pilot whales were killed in one day east of here 20 years ago.

Last year 540 pilot whales were caught and slaughtered.

When news of the whale killing spread across the islands Sunday thousands of islanders flocked to the village of Midvaag, causing huge traffic jams on roads and ferries. Tradition says the chief official of the local whaling district must personally count the slaughtered whales and post official bulletins requesting all inhabitants of the district to pick up their shares on the beach.

The official count was 350 tons of meat and blubber which, according to ancient rules, were distributed among the district's 3,500 people.

In the evening there was a big dance to celebrate the killing.

HEAVY ICE FLOES MAY CURB SEAL HUNTERS

OTTAWA (UPI) — The annual seal hunt begins today off the Labrador coast but environment officials say heavy icefloes may prevent Canadian and Norwegian sealers from catching their quotas of 60,000 seals.

Last year the Norwegians reached their quota but the Canadians fell short, the officials said. But this year, because of the severe winter, the ice extends from 150 to 200 miles off the coast. The seals are only 18 miles off the coast and the vessels will not be able to come close enough to hunt.

Canada has been gradually resricting the seal hunt over the last few years. Last year, hunters were not permitted to hunt seals near the gulf of St. Lawrence. Now, the only spot left is off Labrador.

The season is divided up between the hunt for harp seals and the larger species, the hood seals. The harp seal hunt opened today and closes April 24, while the hood seal hunt does not begin until March 20 but also ends April 24.

The hunt will be supervised by environment officials to ensure the proper methods for killing the seals are used and that the hunters stay within their quotas.

... MONEY FLOAT

decided to float the six currencies — that is, free the currencies from fixed dollar prices — at a 10-hour meeting of finance ministers ending early today.

A statement said finance ministers of the 14 richest non-Communist nations, including the United States, will endorse the new plan next Friday in Paris.

The new system, the statement said, will go into effect March 19. The markets were closed to stop the unloading of billions of dollars by individuals and corporations who feared it would lose even more value around the world.

The crisis blew up only 16 days after President Nixon devalued the dollar by 10 per cent in an attempt to solve an earlier world money crisis that centred on the dollar.

The joint float meant that the prices of the six currencies concerned will remain tied to each other. But they will float up and down in unison against the dollar and other currencies according to supply and demand.

Economists predicted the dollar's value will drop on European markets in the short term and but probably will rise again in the long run.

Since the 1944 Bretton Woods agreement, the value of major western currencies has been expressed by their relation to the dollar. Generally, each country has maintained a fixed rate of exchange to the dollar.

This relationship was shaken by the money crisis of 1971, which ended in a dollar devaluation coupled with an agreement that linked major currencies to within 4.5 per cent of the dollar.

A second dollar devaluation followed on Feb. 12. It did not end speculation, it fueled it. The dollar began to slide down again and money markets shut down on March 2.

Market officials said the trouble was caused by speculators betting millions of dollars that the fixed exchange rates would be changed — in this case, that the European rates would be revalued upward against the dollar.

Therefore, they said, the joint float will ease the pressure. Any speculation against the dollar will result in an immediate increase in the value of the European currencies, preventing any speculative head of steam from building up.

Co-Op Loan Urged

A food co-operative organization has asked the provincial government for a $20,000 interest-free load to enable it to buy bulk amounts of food to supply to member co-operatives.

The Fed-Up Co-operative Wholesaler made the appeal today to the legislative committee on agriculture.

Dana Webber of Victoria, spokesman for the group, said Fed-Up "has been working for two years to get peoples' food prices down.

"We knew what the problem was and we set out to do something about it," Webber said.

"We feel it is obvious that the rampant profiteering, deception and collusion in the food industry must be stopped by government action," Webber said in the brief Fed-Up presented to the committee.

"However, we think that popular control of food distribution is preferable to state control and that member-run co-ops offer a way of establishing it."

The $20,000 loan to Fed-Up would be used to supply bulk amounts of food to member co-operatives throughout the province. It would be repaid at a rate of $200 per month, starting three months after receipt of the loan.

Webber said the idea that establishment of food co-ops would hurt the small food merchans is not true. Small stores are used mainly as convenience outlets, he said, where people go to get items which they need in a hurry.

For larger purchases, consumers go to the large corporate chain stores, he said.

Webber said the main danger facing the consumer is the tendency of the corporate chains to get into the small store markets. Some chains have already moved in that direction, he said.

Webber added that support by the government of member-run food co-operatives was a concept agreed upon by this year's convention of the provincial New Democratic Party, along with its provincial council.

any assets be passed to the city on liquidation.

Asked if the city would take over the bureau if this happesed, Pollen said that decision would have to be made by council but there was "no way" that he would be in favor of it.

Davidson and Wright were asked after the meeting if today's move was a bluff to get city council to increase its grant.

Wright said, "This is no attempt to bluff the city. We're not angry, we're not upset or bluffing. We've looked at all the possibilities and this is the only way. Obviously, without funding we can't survive."

Stressing that tourism was more important than ever to the Greater Victoria area now that industries like Bapco Paint were moving away, Wright was asked if the bureau's closure would make much of an impact.

Wright replied, "It's like a train going uphill, the tourist bureau being the engine that's pulling the coaches. Take the engine away and what happens?"

Davidson contended that the part of five per cent room tax imposed by the provincial government should be given to help tourist attractions, Pollen disagreed with this:

"These people," he said, "and quite rightly so believe that tourism is vital for this area, just like motherhood." Adding that revenues from the room tax were being used to help tourist attjactions, Pollen said:

This should really be steered into the city to enhance its tourist facilities — and it is. They (the provincial government) have given us $280,000 for the lower causeway in the Inner Harbor".

Pollen, saying that the city had been shouldering more than its share of the financial load of the bureau, pointed out that Saanich paid nothing and Oak Bay a very small portion.

quickly begin freshening up the government with new faces and policies, perhaps even inviting opposition centre reformers to join the majority.

Lecanuet had supported the Gaullists after the first round by withdrawing candidates in their favor, and he is expected to join the government. But Servan-Schreiber sniped incessantly at the Gaullists and is not likely to be offered a post.

Marchais denounced the "injustice" of the electoral system and France's two big trade union movements posed the threat of strikes by declaring that they would soon be making heavy pay demands.

Prime Minister Pierre Messmer and many other top government members won outright in the first round of voting a week ago.

Messmer, a stalwart Gaullist who had indicated that he might be dropped as premier in the post-election changes, said the election result showed not only a general voter rejection of the left's program for radical change but also a desire for "renewal."

Cons Still Protest

KINGSTON (CP) — A sit-down strike by the 380 convicts at Millhaven penitentiary entered its 14th day today, but prison officials said convicts have remained quiet since last Thursday when tear gas was used to end a riot that caused an estimated $20,000 damage.

Tories Eye Own Land Bill

There is a 50-50 chance that the Progressive Conservative party will introduce an alternative bill on control of land use, PC House leader Scott Wallace said today.

Wallace said a meeting later in the week with party leader Derril Warren, party president Peter Hyndman, Saanich-and-the-Islands MLA Hugh Curtis and himself will determine whether the party will proceed with drafting the bill, which will act as a counterpoint to the government's controversial Bill 42 — the Land Commission Act.

Wallace said there is a need for public opinion on the legislation which has not been determined yet either by the Tories or by the government.

An early draft of a bill has been made, Wallace said, but a final decision on whether to proceed with a formal presentation has not yet been made.

If a Tory bill does materialize, Wallace said it would provide for greater protection, appeal machinery, compensation and public hearings. The party objects to the "blanket power" over land which the proposed land commission would have, he said.

KILLER ADMITS 38 VICTIMS

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Joey," a professional killer, says he has murdered 38 men, all but three on mob contracts, but rejected $50,000 to kill Joey Gallo.

"I turned it down because Joey and I were friends, we had grown up within the organization together," he said in an article published in the April Playboy.

The self-confessed killer's story, with the help of author Dave Fisher, describes his career as a free-lance "hit man" which began at age 16 when he got $5,000 for killing an unidentified man who had angered a mob member.

"I was given a gun and this guy was pointed out to me. I just walked up behind him and blew the top of his head off. Then I turned and walked away."

What sort of man can kill persons he doesn't even know and then return home to his family and pet dog thinking of himself as no different that "the average bricklayer."

Joey tells it this way: "To carry out an execution with the cold knowledge of what you're doing, you have to believe in nothing but yourself. Most people have the fear of reprisal; I do not. Because life and death doesn't mean anything to me. I don't care if I live or die and I don't care if anybody else lives or dies. I have no emotion. None. It's all long gone."

Over the last quarter century Joey claims to have earned about $4 million for his various criminal activities and killed all but three of his 38 victims for money. The fee usually averages between $10,000 and $25,000, although there is no set price.

He says the three no-profit murders were for revenge, fellow hoodlums who went to Joey's home to kill him but upon finding him away beat his pregnant young wife to death.

By Joey's estimate there are about 1,000 hit men still working throughout the country. "But, except in New York, there hasn't been that much work lately, so I guess you might accurately call us a dying breed."

Ship Collision Spills Crude

HOUSTON (AP) — A U.S. coast guard task force is cleaning an oil spill in the Houston ship channel caused by the collision of a freighter and a barge. The coast guard would not estimate when the task would be completed but said some 25 per cent of the spill had been collected several hours after the operation began.

The spill, estimated at 150,000 gallons of a petroleum mixture, occurred Friday following a collision between the freighter Mayo Lykes and an oil barge being pushed by the tug Bayou Lafourche. There were no injuries.

Ship channel traffic was not affected by the spill although captain S. R. Early of the port of Galveston did close the channel for 11 hours due to the collision of two freighters north of Texas City.

The Canadian motor vessel Scotiacliffe Hall and the inbound Bahamian ship Drucilia collided Friday night about three miles east of Texas City.

The channel cleanup involved three coast guard patrol boats, smaller coast guard craft and 11 skimmer boats owned by area oil companies.

The Mayor Lykes continued on too Bolivar Road in Galveston Bay where it anchored.

The coast guard spokesman said there was little likelihood the spill would ignite because of its high flash point.

Healthy People Able To Spread Diptheria

Next time you cough or sneeze, it's possible you may be spraying diptheria germs at anyone near you — and no one may ever know.

Diphtheria, a scourge half a century ago, is still around and people who appear in good health can be carrying it. That has been the case recently at both Port Alice on northern Vancouver Island and in Washington state.

So long as carriers and those around them have been immunized, there's no problem. But diphtheria is a "potentially explosive" hazard if the level of immunization is allowed to drop, Dr. A. A. Larsen, the provincial government's epidemiologist says.

Diphtheria is an acute infection generally centred in tonsils, larynx or nose and it can generate a virulent toxin in the body.

Larsen said it is particularly serious in infants or young children. Swelling in the throat can block the air passages and the poison diphtheria produces can effect the nervous system and damage the heart.

Another form of the disease which effects the skin and appears as skin ulcers is found for the most part among elderly men living in skid road areas.

A five to 10 per cent mortality rate from diphtheria has changed little over the past 50 years, he said.

Analysis of throat swabs has shown there were 22 healthy people carrying the infection in the recent Port Alice outbreak. The anti-toxin in their systems from immunization protected them from the toxin diphtheria produces but that doesn't stop the organism from growing in their systems.

The island outbreak was spotted from lab analysis of a throat swab taken from a patient scheduled to have tonsils out. Earlier immunization protected that person and all but one of the others found to be carrying the infection. The lone person who did not have immunization is now recovering.

Larsen said antibiotics are very effective in treating diphtheria. The infection is not as serious if caught early.

In recent years there have been three fatalities in "flop house" settings in Vancouver and the victims in these cases had not been immunized, he said.

The immunization program, through doctors and well baby clinics, begins when a baby is six months old and there are three innoculations through the school years. All pupils get them unless parents refuse permission.

ESCAPER CAUGHT IN INTERIOR

One of two Wilkinson Road jail escapers—the first two in almost a decade — was recaptured in the B.C. interior Saturday, but his 22-year-old companion is still at large, an RCMP spokesman said today.

Gerald Robert Langer, 30, was recaptured after 32 days at large by Kamloops and Clearwater RCMP at a Clearwater motel noon Saturday. Langer was asleep as police entered the motel.

Langer escaped from Wilkinson Road Feb. 9 with 22-year-old Orville John Gustavson, after the men sawed through the bars of a window near their cell.

A Victoria RCMP officer said today that Langer and Gustavson travelled together for some time after their escape, but appeared to have split up some time before Langer's recapture.

Langer was being held in custody during the preliminary hearing into a two-count charge of heroin conspiracy. He faced charges along with four other persons.

Gustavson was awaiting hearing on a charge of possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

Vive le Status Quo

Final balloting yesterday in France's national elections curbed a strong leftist trend that was demonstrated in the earlier voting of March 4. The French system provides run-offs for election races which did not produce an absolute majority. The coalition administration led by Gaullist forces won a return to office by a comfortable margin, but the result was termed a reversal of predictions that the returns would be much closer. The Gaullists and their supporters hold 274 seats — down 100 from the last National Assembly — middle of the road parties carried 28 seats and the Communist-Socialist partnership took 181.

The election indicated two significant facts. One is that the Gaullist forces, which have governed for the past 15 years, still command a comfortable majority among French voters, with all that this implies regarding the country's domestic and foreign policies. The other is that the combined Socialist and Communist strength in France is winning wider support as the East-West confrontation in Europe cools. The result of the election — with its significant drop in government seats — was described by some observers as an indication that many voters wanted a change but not a revolution. Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin, with clear evidence of relief, observed that "good sense has won."

M. Marcellin avoided the fate of Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann and Justice Minister Rene Plevin, who were defeated. But the general result was seen as a reaffirmation of President Pompidou's policies toward the West and toward Europe. This is particularly significant in view of the increasing importance of the European Economic Community bloc and the moves toward a better relationship with the Soviet camp which West Germany has been pursuing.

Although France has exhibited clear evidence of deep political and social unrest on numerous occasions during the past few years, the record of the Gaullist administration demonstrated a strong underlying stability. Its 15 years of unbroken power in the Assembly cannot be matched by many other democratic regimes in Europe — or anywhere else. And the Pompidou success cannot be credited entirely to the after-glow of General De Gaulle's flame, strong though that may be in some quarters.

The government seems to be giving most Frenchmen what they want for their country, even though there is an increasing number who would move ahead with nationalization at a faster pace. What a victory for this element might do to the European Economic Community would open up a whole new set of problems. To this extent, the French elections may also be interpreted as having confirmed the continued existence of the EEC for another few years.

Pit Stop

Emphasizing the Threat of Oil Spills

U.S. Coast Guard reports indicate that no serious damage has been done to sea life by the oil spill from the tanker Hillyer Brown, grounded off Kelp Point, about 700 miles southwest of Anchorage. If they are justified by later assessments, this is good news. But the mishap will not be dismissed casually by British Columbians, whose premier performed the correct gesture in volunteering provincial help to the American forces seeking to clean up the spill.

West Coast Canadians and others will note the grounding and escape of oil as just one more piece of evidence supporting the case that vessels do pile up on the rocks and, when they are breached, oil leaks out to cause pollution.

By present indications, there was no damage in the relatively remote area of the North Pacific. It takes little imagination, however, to visualize a much more serious accident involving a much larger tanker, carrying vast quantities of oil in an area where conditions would make the mishap a tragedy of major dimensions. Proponents of sea shipment of oil from Alaska may reassure the public that special precautions are being taken to avoid such a disaster near British Columbia's coast, particularly in the Strait of Juan de Fuca. There is no suggestion that precautions will not be taken. Neither is there any suggestion that the Hillyer Brown ran aground just for the fun of it.

Marine accidents under certain conditions are inevitable and no safeguards yet devised are proof against them, whether the failure is due to equipment or to human factors. The Aleutian incident emphasizes the point.

Appeal of Heart and Skill

Little Olga Korbut, the Russian gymnast who stole the show and the hearts of the world at the Munich Olympics, in the fastest televised blitz on record, is due in New York this week as a goodwill ambassador in the more relaxed cultural exchanges arranged between her country and the United States. It is doubtful if a better ambassador could have been chosen by the USSR.

Olga has three gold medals to prove that she was the best girl gymnast at Munich, and the unstinted praise of millions of television viewers who watched her spectacular performance.

In the Bavarian city, apart from her unique athletic triumph, she became the little girl around whose shoulders almost everyone wants to place an affectionate arm. If she retains that image in the course of an 18-day coast-to-coast exhibition tour with others of her sport, she will have made a major contribution to international friendship. Diplomacy achieves a fresh, graceful and effective guise when carried lightly on such young shoulders.

WILLIAM R. FRYE

Insistence on a 'New Deal'

PARIS — Events in France this past week have illustrated vividly one of the major phenomena of present-day western Europe. There is a "revolution of rising expectations" among lower and middle-class Europeans which has resulted in a rebirth of the political left.

Nearly half — some 46 per cent — of the French electorate backed a radical form of socialism in the March 4 parliamentary elections. The final balloting yesterday gave the Leftists a little more than one-third of the 490 seats.

This means that a greatly increased number of French voters support nationalization of key industries and a drastic social-welfare program. Many would tolerate, and some would welcome, Communist participation in the government.

It means further that the once-moribund French Socialist Party has become a significant force on the political scene.

Protest Vote

Some of this can be discounted as simply a protest vote — as dissatisfaction with the too-long-entrenched power of the Gaullist-led majority. Voting for the Left was the only effective way to express the feeling that it was "time for a change."

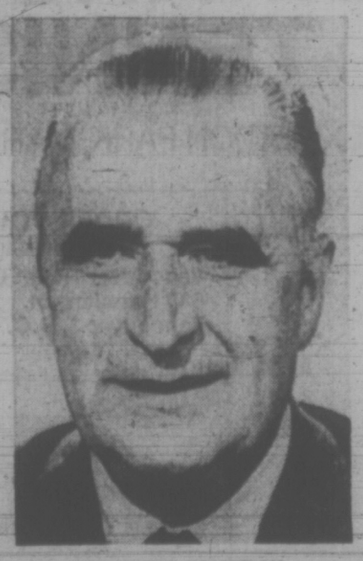
But more fundamentally, there is in France — as there is in Italy, in the Low Countries, and very visibly in Britain — a profound social and economic malaise, a refusal to accept the present distribution of wealth and power, and an insistence on what Franklin Roosevelt (or perhaps Salvador Allende) would call a "New Deal."

As prosperity has come to western Europe, those who are not fully sharing in it want their cut. The managerial class in France is paid as much as in the United States, while an estimated 2.3 million workers get less than 1000 Francs ($230) a month, or about $1.20 an hour. A 1000-franc minimum wage has been one of the Left's big campaign issues.

There is also a change in the attitude of the Catholic Church. As an Latin America, its influence is no longer consistently conservative. In French Catholic strong-holds like Britanny and Alsace-Lorraine, the Socialists and Communists have been doing surprisingly well.

And there is another important factor at work. Forces of radical change have freer rein in the political realm now that the cold war is largely over and Soviet influence is receding from western Europe.

Marxism no longer being seen as a major military menace just across the Oder-Neisse line, it is not now considered subversive of domestic security to vote for the Left. The "tide of Muscovy" has been "sucked out of Europe by the Asiatic moon," as a British diplomat once put it.



PRESIDENT POMPIDOU
. . . a change in his nation

The average man or woman going to the polls does not think in these terms. But he is, in fact, reflecting a change in the world balance of power.

A similar phenomenon is visible in the United States in a different context. The Nixon Administration has been able, in recent years, to make a dramatic and even revolutionary change in United States policy toward China. The United States has all but recognized Peking, and co-operated with it to the end of peace in Vietnam.

These steps have stirred minimal opposition. By its silence, American opinion has accepted and endorsed what would have been considered subversive and even treasonous in the past.

The only rational explanation is that the military menace of Communism is perceived in wholly new terms. It now is seen as far less of a threat to American security.

American voters are not going to support Communists or Socialists at the polls as a result, much less in numbers approaching half the electorate. But they are, in a sense, "voting" for rapprochement with an adversary whose military posture had previously made its ideology an absolute barrier to collaboration.

Meaning Unclear

What all this means for the immediate future is not clear. It does not mean that Europe is going Communist, or that the Soviet Union (or China) is about to accomplish at the ballot box what it could not achieve with its armies.

It does mean that the earlier glue which held the West together — fear of Soviet and Chinese ideology — will no longer serve the purpose, and something better must be found if Western alliances are not to fall apart.

It also means that there will have to be social and economic reforms of a "New Deal" character, not merely in France but elsewhere in Europe, if the Centre and Right are not to be inundated. Their grip on power in France is now razor-thin.

The encouraging thing is that this fact, and its implications, are widely known and appreciated.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Mad, Mad, Mad?

Re: "World We Live in Fast Going Mad," Front page The Times Feb. 23.

All the world needs is another so-called intellectual who firmly believes in the capacity of man's brain to improve and to adapt to mental stress. It is highly unlikely that man's brain capacity will improve in the next crucial decades nor its ability to cope with stress in unbearable situations.

The present size is the result of millions of years of evolution. Hopes of improvement in that direction are as unfounded and idealistic as relying on creatures from outer space coming to solve our problems, or that Armageddon is just around the corner.

What is possible, and needed, is major improvement in the related material information content of the brain — sound knowledge of basic problems and their causes in order that effective action can be taken individually and collectively towards achieving a common solution.

The yardsticks used by Dr. Cappon and his colleagues to measure mental illness reflect the present insanity of commercial society's worldwide rat race. The articles on Page 5 of the same issue of The Times should help bear this contention out, "Sometimes you've got to say no to your boss," "There's still a War on for President Thieu," "The Lunacy of Nations" and "Inflation can be Fun."

The approximately 1.5 litres of grey matter common to all homo sapiens does not suggest that there are any intellectual elite groups that have some cranial advantage over the majority of the species. On the other hand, a study of the property relationships of modern society will expose the privileged position a tiny owning minority enjoy at the expense of the working class majority. Qualifications to join the privileged class of parasites are not determined by brain capacity and ability to withstand stress. On the contrary, they are for the most part determined by the carnal instincts common to all animals through birth and property-based society's rights of inheritance. A few make it through conniving and luck, very seldom in the service of Man. — Wm. H. Johnson, 6332 Central Saanich Rd.

Why Scream?

The price of milk has gone up two cents, two whole cents. The farmer is going to make a killing.

When anyone else's product or wages go up it is never for two cents, but rather 10 cents, 15 cents, 25 cents or more.

The Minister of Agriculture is contacted and expected to halt this outrageous and unreasonable increase. The newspapers print headlines and the radio and TV scream it from the roof tops.

"The price of milk is going up two cents."

When the cost of any or everything else goes up, we pay it. We grumble but we pay. Why scream about the price of milk? If the producers were paid in proportion to other so-called working class people, milk would be $1.00 a quart.

The farmer has a perfect right to put up his price because the handler and the feed company have it all spent for him before he sees any of the cream. The farmer is several years behind in the current trend of inflation. — Mrs. G. W. Nisbet, R.R. 1, Cobble Hill.

No Firehall

We want to thank the Mayor and those city alderman who were against Alderman Christie's proposal to install a firehall in Beacon Hill Park. May we, on behalf of some 700 members of the Beacon Hill Park Association, praise these city fathers for turning down Alderman Christie's proposal. The reporting of this idea is appreciated.

We are opposed to the suggestion of such a building anywhere in this park — we feel there are enough buildings there already. We want to see the natural areas of the park preserved and the area proposed for a firehall should be left to preserve a balance between natural and developed portions of the park. Not only would we have increased noise, more asphalt and less grass, but a firehall would mean that the lives of children playing in the park's play area would be endangered. — John Newberry, Jan Gould, Helen Forrest, Jim Beaubien, M. Darling, Beacon Hill Park Association Executives.

Oil Industry

I am concerned about Premier Dave Barrett's remarks to the legislature on February 23, regarding the oil and gas industry in N. E. British Columbia.

He has accused the opposition of "misleading the people," when he himself is resorting to typical Socialist misuse of statistics.

If Mr. Barrett had checked the number of well licenses issued during the first few weeks of the new year he would have seen that there has been a steady decline from 30 licenses during the first two weeks in January to only 12 during the last two weeks in February. All of this has been based on anticipation of what Mr. Barrett had planned for the industry.

PREMIER BARRETT
. . . doesn't realize

What Mr. Barrett, through his obvious lack of knowledge of the petroleum industry, doesn't realize is that following the completion of commitment wells this downward trend will continue. In addition, little does he realize the number of drilling locations which were still on the drawing boards and will probably never ever get to the licensing stage.

British Columbia is not in the "driver's seat" when it has to import one-half of its crude oil requirements.

To quote a recent editorial, "Socialists can't seem to understand that without activity in the petroleum industry and without production there is nothing to share." — D. A. Nikiforuk, 5315 Bannerman Drive, N.W., Calgary.

Bicycles on the Road

Bicycle riding in Victoria is a hazardous business at the best of times. Automobile drivers are not accustomed to bicycles on the road. No provision is made in this city to accommodate those who want to use the 30 minutes or so they need to get to their work to improve their physical condition and who, in the process, do their (little) bit for reducing air pollution. I agree that the smell of sweat is not a pleasant one but it is a lot better than the dangerous fumes coming from car exhausts.

Car drivers do not seem to be too happy about the fact that there are bicycles on the road. There is one thing they can and must do, however, to help the cyclists and to avoid the embarrassment of hitting one. They can have the courtesy to use their turn signals to indicate their intentions. It is not very pleasant to see a car pass you and make a righthand turn right in front of you without even bothering to signal.

Many bicycle riders, on the other hand, do not seem to realize that in order to prevent getting hit by a car one must be visible. The number of cyclists, riding their bikes at night without any lights, is astounding. Especially, children very seldom use bicycles equipped with proper head and tail lights.

Parents who think nothing of sending their kids out on their bicycles at night without lights, ought to be penalized. On roads like Interurban or Wilkinson for example it is extremely difficult to see bicycles in the dark. If it also happens to be raining and the headlights of oncoming traffic shine in the car driver's eyes it is virtually impossible.

If, in a situation like this, a child on a bike gets hit by a car, who is to be blamed? The car driver for being on the road? The car coming from the opposite direction for not dimming his lights? The weather? Or maybe the parents of the child, who allowed him to go out under these circumstances with an unsafe bicycle? — G. M. Albricht, 2854 Austin Ave.

Vrashnitovia

A Feb. 27 UPI report from Moscow stated: "Soviet scientists think ordinary flowers 'feel' fear, joy, pain and other human emotions, the newspaper Socialist Industry reports." Tests seemed to prove that a hypnotized human who feels happy can make a plant "happy."

What next? Something like this?

"MOSCOW (WUP) July 20, 1986—The threat of economic disaster due to the late spring and recent stormy weather now appears to be past, according to Feodor Mogilevsky, Chief of the Central Bureau of Statistical Mobilization. To avert a crisis, thousands of young female volunteers were requisitioned from major cities to go to the potato fields in Laynovskia. At this critical time, with the potato plants in imminent bloom, these volunteers were scheduled to provide vrashnitovia, or emotional aid, for the plants. Without this happy emotional stimulation, produced from the volatile female psyche under hypnosis, for the 16 critical days of the flowering stage, the potato crop would have been gravely reduced, according to Mogilevsky.

"Therefore, the Central Committee for Recognition has issued the edict for August 5 for a People's Composium to be held in Red Square, as a joint celebration at the triumphant return of the volunteers from the potato fields and in recognition of the great devotion to the State as displayed by our visiting Verdubecan comrades, who to the number of 27,654 females have won this visit to the capital in recognition of having completed 22 days of successful vrashnitovia in the garlic fields of Verdubec." — A Skeptic Green Thumb.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of March 12:

SYDNEY, N.S.W. — Today was a momentous day in the history of the Australian Commonwealth. The new federal capital site was formally christened by Lady Denman, who named the city Canberra. The first steps have actually been taken toward the building of the capital. Lady Denman, the wife of the governor-general, performed the ceremony before a large crowd. The new capital, which will be a complete new town, will be laid out after the most modern plans. As a measure of the cost of the new capital, is the fact that already a quarter of a million sterling has been spent.

Dutch Ponder Peril of Growth

By SUE MASTERMAN
London Observer

It is no surprise to the Dutch people that the best selling book in The Netherlands in 1972 was the report of the Club of Rome, entitled Frontiers of Growth.

The report, based on research, worked out at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, predicts solemnly that if the world's population and industrial economy continues to grow at the present rate, the end of our civilization will come within 100 years.

Few countries are as aware of the effects of over-population and pollution as are the Dutch. The Club of Rome's report was only part of the activities in Holland of this group of individual scientists, economists and technologist from all over the world, 30 of whom met in Rome and extended the Club in 1968. From May to October an exhibition on the basis of the report was set up in Rotterdam, where it was opened by Queen Juliana. The book itself sold 210,000 copies, and caused political and scientific controversy.

The environment-conscious Dutch live in the most densely-populated country in Europe which houses 13,500,000 people. It is half the size of the state of Maine with 14 times as many people. But most of them are crammed into an area about the size of the city of London and suburbs.

Most Dutch housing—some 80 per cent—has had to be replaced since 1945, mainly because of war damage: Rotterdam was almost totally destroyed and The Hague was severely hit. It has been easy, in a country so crowded and where land is therefore precious, for the authorities to encourage the building of flats although waterlogged Dutch ground does not lend it easily to the construction of skyscrapers.

A house is hard to come by in Holland's Randstad, the area bordered by Amsterdam, Rotterdam and Utrecht, and flats are cheaply built and noisy. In areas with a high level of modern flats family doctors have reacted strongly to a recent reprimand by the authorities for prescribing tranquillisers in unprecedented quantities. The doctors claim that more than 80 per cent of their patients have physical symptoms whose origins are purely pychological and originate from the housing or working environment.

Prime Example

The Club of Rome continues its activities in The Netherlands, which is seen as a prime example of a country vulnerable to outside effects on its environment, and politically weak when it comes to putting pressure on polluters over the border.

The dangers of uncontrolled economic growth are being investigated on the basis of an area stretching 300 kilometres from the centre of Rotterdam. This densely populated area contains a pollution-prone chemical industry, oil refineries, a port which needs to transport dangerous products across country, a river—the Rhine—which is known as the sewer of Europe, a high proportion of imported labour, a border area with Belgium which has the habit of planting its filthiest industries next to the Dutch border in the knowledge that there is a prevailing westerly wind, and a set of nature reserves which are threatened by the spreading of the city and the port.

This scientific program, led by Professor R. Timman of Delft University, is still in its early stages. When it is complete it will provide a model for the prediction of the effects of growth and development for the whole of industrialized Western Europe. In this way the Club of Rome hopes to quash the criticism, also expressed by many of its own members, that the MIT report was based on material which was either too American or too generalized to be applied to Europe.

Five Spokes

The model for Europe will, like the MIT model, have five basic spokes to its wheel. Population growth, production of food, industrialization, exhaustion of natural reserves and pullution—these are the main headings to the chapters into which the investigation has been divided.

The Club of Rome is also busy with a new programme of research on a world level. This is being led by another Dutchman, Nobel Prizewinner Professor Jan Tinbergen. It is hoped that this report will be completed before the end of 1973. Once again, the club will try to establish on the basis of models and prognosis what is going to happen to the world we live in.

After a history of narrow escapes from disaster

Frontiers of Growth drew some frightening conclusions. It gives the world less than seven years, until 1980, in which to take measures to control the rate of growth and the use of natural resources. If this does not happen, the scientists conclude, then we are doomed to take the consequences of an uncontrolled reduction of the world's population by famine or other results of our irresponsible and poorly divised economic system. In the sponsible and poorly divised economic system. In the worst event the report predicts that human life could disappear altogether within 100 years, if we get to the point where we eliminate one another rather than tollerate that we all survive at a much more basic level.

The message is not cheerful, but it is one for which the Dutch were prepared. The Rhine, on which a third of the country depends for its drinking water, was poisoned for four weeks in the autumn of 1969 by one shipload of poison emptied into the river as it passed thrqugh Germany.

If the river had remained poisoned for another week there would have been no drinking water for one-third of the people of Holland, who would have had to be moved to other parts of the country and another two million people would also have had to be evacuated because they would have been deprived of essential services.

Eye to eye with the threat of having to evacuate over half the population, the Dutch government have since taken the initiative to organize meetings of European Ministers in an effort to reach a common standpoint on environmental problems.

The Dutch have repeatedly put up a strong plea for drastic measures at European conferences.

For themselves the Dutch drafted a law which gives much more power to the provincial councils and the local councils when measures have to be taken to cut back pollution. It was in the committee stage before the Club of Rome's report was published in Holland in March.

Extra Impetus

The overwhelming support for the new law, however, which was passed with the approval of both Government and opposition, may have been partly due to the extra impetus which the report gave to Dutch public opinion. Under the law the mayors of local councils and the provincial authorities may order industries to cut back their production or to close down altogether if their production process presents a real threat to the local environment.

Rotterdam and Tokyo share with Los Angeles the notoriety of being the three main victims of photochemical smog, a form of air pollution which is caused by a reaction between industrial fumes in sunlight. Rotterdam has a complex warning system when photochemical smog threatens. Before the new law was passed the industry around Rotterdam harbour could only be requested to cut down its output in time of trouble.

Holland has had so many narrow escapes from environmental disaster in the past, from broken dykes to exploding oil refineries and leaking atomic reactors, that government and people take environmental problems seriously.

Has The Netherlands already reached the limits of growth?

Hardening of a Nation's Heart

NEW REPUBLIC
An Editorial

The word "amnesty" comes from amnestia, which is Greek for forgetfulness. But Webster be damned. To the President amnesty "means forgiveness."

From a Christian point of view that interpretation would seem to commend it, and if we could claim the power of absolution as the President has, we would use it. But Mr. Nixon will not use it, because draft dodgers and deserters have sinned against the state (in many instances so as not to sin against their consciences) and so must do penance — go to jail or remain in exile. "We (the Executive person) cannot provide forgiveness for them. Those who served paid their price. Those who deserted must pay their price, and the price is not a junket in the Peace Corps or something like that, as some have suggested."

Are these stern words nothing more than a reflex political response to the presumed prejudices of a silent majority? Or does the President genuinely feel that strongly about draft resisters? A year ago, answering a question put by CBS newsman Dan Rather, he was more relaxed: "I for one, would be very liberal with regard to amnesty, but not while there are Americans in Vietnam fighting to serve their country and defend their country, and not while POWs are being held by North Vietnam.

'Never, Never'

After that we will consider it, but it would have to be on the basis of their paying the price, of course, that anyone should pay for violating the law." This line hardened during the presidential campaign when Senator McGovern let it be known that he supported amnesty for draft evaders. We soon saw the President on network television telling POW wives he would "never, never" give amnesty to deserters — as long as Americans were held in North Vietnam.

Now the prisoners are coming home. Might not forgetfulness, if not forgiveness, help to bind up the nation's wounds? The answer thus far given is negative. There has been no movement toward clemency for those war victims who are in Canada, Sweden and our own jails.

The explanation for this is not pure vindictiveness. The abstraction uusually brought forward is that "the dead" will lose their "honor" if exiles and prisoners created by the draft, who are alive, are not made to suffer. People ask if those who obeyed the law paid a price why shouldn't those who disobeyed pay a price too? It is logically symmetical, but it assumes that deserters and evaders have not paid a price already and that if their motives were sincere they shouldn't mind, indeed, should welcome, going to jail. And it assumes that American society will be better off if they do go to jail.

The political groups that claim to speak for the war resisters, like Safe Return (New York), Amex (Toronto) and Up From Exile (Sweden), are in their way just as inflexible as the President. They maintain that before they can recognize the authority of the US government, it must absolve itself by publicly confessing its guilt as the perpetrator of an immoral war. Those who engineered and supported the Vietnam effort, they say, were morally in the wrong as were such tools of the war as the selective service system and the laws upholding it. To disobey them, the resisters argue, was to obey a higher law. They will not accept any logic that imposes punishment for having been right, certainly not a prison term, not even a mandatory "junket" in the Peace Corps. The only amnesty they will recognize as fitting is one that completely, unconditionally obliterates the criminal charges against all categories of men who refused military service.

Except in a few cases, the members of congress most outspoken against the war have not been willing to take a stand on amnesty. Sen. McGovern, stigmatized last year as the candidate of "acid, amnesty and abortion," has not discussed the subject since November because he feels it is a matter for the Executive to decide. Sen. Hatfield (R—Ore.), though he opposes the president's position, has not made a formal statement on amnesty and doesn't plan to. Sen. Mondale (D—Mont.) says that "as always, it's up to the president." Sen. Muskie told ABC's Issues and Answers that he's in favor of some conditional kind of amnesty, granted on a case-by-case basis to worthy individuals, but not to deserters. Sen. Kennedy, who's generally favorable to amnesty and has conducted the definitive hearings on the question, does not intend to stir things up at this time, and, like the others, he has not endorsed any amnesty legislation.

The only bill offered in the Senate was written by a conservative, Sen. Robert Taft (R—Ohio). He would allow draft evaders — but not deserters — to earn amnesty by serving for three years in the military or an alternate government branch such as the Peace Corps or VISTA at the lowest pay grade. Those now in prison would receive credit of up to two years for the time already served.

Generous Past

In other times it was the executive that most eagerly moved toward amnesty, and as historian Henry Steele Commager has pointed out, the early presidents seem to have been more generous than those of the 20th century. George Washington made no attempt to prosecute deserters from the Revolutionary Army, and pardoned all participants in the 1794 Whiskey Rebellion. John Adams gave a "full, free and absolute pardon" to the members of Fries Rebellion of 1799. Jefferson pardoned deserters who returned to the army in 1807; Madison did the same during the War of 1812; and Jackson pardoned deserters in 1830 provided they never enlisted again. Lincoln proclaimed a general amnesty following the Civil War, despite opposition from congressmen who wanted to punish the South for its transgression. The record sinee has been less impressive. Many, World War I draft evaders and deserters weren't released from prison until the presidencies of Harding and Coolidge. On recommendation of an amnesty committee, Truman released only about one-tenth of the 15,000 war resisters in federal custody at the end of the Second World War. There was no amnesty after the Korean war.

This pattern suggests a hardening of the heart, a growing fondness for a theoretical system of guilt — what Abraham Lincoln called a "pernicious abstraction." There are some who feel, as columnist William S. White wrote last week, that amnesty after this war would "hand to future 'dissidents' the power, at least hypothetically, to denude the armed forces of the United States and to veto the foreign policy of its elected leaders." Those who tremble for the nation on this account should consider how much more convincing these arguments must have been when they were presented to Washington and Lincoln, and how triumphantly they were disregarded.

A PERSON FOR ALL THAT

RUSSELL BAKER

WASHINGTON — Cummings is the soul of frivolity. Nothing is serious to him. Nothing even sacred. The rightest of causes cannot squelch his childishness. Just a moment ago he popped into the office here, mind giggling over the belated discovery that in the feminist movement a chairman is usually called a chairperson.

"Chauvinists giggled themselves out over that months ago, Cummings," I explained. "A perfectly understandable attempt by women to break out of the prison of words, that old Baconian idyll. And why should they not? Why should woman's brow be pressed with this crown of suffixed man? Why should she be crucified upon a cross of English?"

Childish eyes glittering behind thick spectacles, Cummings said, "Exactly! Sexism must be hounded out of the tongue. Replacing murdered chairman with chairperson merely points the way."

"We made that joke last summer, Cummings. About calling a policeperson, forgetting to tip the doorperson, paying the milkperson, complaining about the bill from the TV repairperson. Even then it was just a one-liner, and not funny if you were really committed to the movement. Not funny at all."

"Have you read 'The Caine Mutiny' by Herperson Wouk?" asked Cummings.

"Don't tempt me, Cummings."

"Which play do you prefer?" asked Cummings. 'Everyperson' or 'The Iceperson Cometh'?"

"Ah yes," said Cummings. "Good old Willie Loperson."

"Cut, Cummings! Cut!"

"Have you read Alfred Noyes' poem, 'The Highwayperson,' lately? Or the work of Gerard Personley Hopkins?"

"I haven't even thought of Hopkins since that summer in Geneva in the sunlight on the banks of Lac Leperson."

"Don't abandon poetry," said Cummings. "Remember, person does not live by bread alone."

"Still, the proper study of personkind is person, Cummings. Poetry in moderation is fine, but I find it more profitable, more feet-on-the-ground, to spend my time contemplating Averell Harriperson, Harry Truperson, Ethel Merperson and Baron Personfred von Richthofen. To study the paperwork empires being built by those two dynamic Presidential aides, John Ehrlichperson and H. R. Haldeperson. I am saddened to reflect how rarely such empires can be built by hard personual labor."

"It is depressing thoughts like that," said Cummings, "that give rise to the violence of the Weatherpersons. Take my advice. When you begin to brood about Haldeperson, the futility of personual labor and the Weatherpersons, warm up the phonograph, but on Benny Goodperson playing 'In Old Personhattan' or 'Can't Help Lovin' That Person of Mine,' sip a little glass of Personischewitz, and you'll lose that murderous impulse to rush into the streets shouting, 'Yo ho ho and a bottle of rum, fifteen persons on a dead person's chest!'"

"That's not my style, Cummings. I prefer listening to Bizet's 'Carpersons' or strumming 'Come You Back to Persondalay' on my persondolin. Afterward I eat a little personicotti and sip some creme de personsthe, and then go out for a long walk with a dog who, as you know, is person's best friend, or perhaps drop by my barber's for a personicure."

"For relaxing," said Cummings," give me sports every time, or history. I never tire of reading about the sinning of Person-O-War and about how Tunney beat the Personassas Mauler on the long count. The stories of the Ottoperson Empire or Suleiperson the Magnificent never fail to—"

"Personally, I prefer the Roperson Empire among the old-timers. But the more modern stuff is best — the creation of the Gerperson state; Lincoln's Epersoncipation Proclamation, which freed persons from their chains and personacles; the expansion of American personufacture, which improved the lot of all personkind, in the process producing such books as 'The Personchurian Candidate' and Steinbeck's 'Of Mice and Persons,' as well as great paintings by artists like Eddouard Personet, and such great newspapers as The Personchester Guardian."

"You're talking like a personiac," said Cummings.

"Like—person—you know! Where's your personners, person? You've been personipulating me! I must get back to serious thinking about the President's persondate, the personnel of greatness, penpersonship, oneupersonship, the decline of the praying personnel, Personsdrake the Magician and whether the Presidency is still attainable by Governor Rockefeller."

"You mean Governor Rockefolk," said Cummings.

"A-persons."

"People like to know who they're buying a car or truck from, and how those men run their business. That's why we're proud to show you our faces in this ad, and at our dealership."

"When you treat people fairly, they'll come back to you for their next car or truck, too."

"And, the more customers we get, the lower the prices on the cars and trucks we sell."

"Of course, it doesn't matter what we say in our advertising if we don't live up to it in our showrooms and in our service department."

City Music Lovers Fortunate To Take in Two Concerts

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Options were open Sunday for the concert-goer to choose vocal music or instrumental — the one at McPherson Playhouse, the other at UVic's MacLaurin auditorium.

Fortunately as the concerts began at different times it was possible to hear both and well worth the effort.

They are a small ensemble of young men and women under the direction of Don Kyle, and their performance is on the highest artistic level.

Their tone is pure and lovely, floating freely on excellent breath support. It is never coarse nor throaty and there is not a suspicion of hoot in the soprano head tone.

Kyle is clearly an exceptional artist. He interprets music through his choristers as lovingly and conscientiously as a violinist does upon his Stradivarius.

He maintains a fine blend and balance, sees to it that the diction is clean, phrases expertly and finds subtle and stirring ways of developing color and character, and all with great taste and refinement.

The program he had selected touched upon many phrases of song literature from the early delights of Palestrina, Monteverdi and Haydn to art songs and spirituals.

There was Di Lasso's Echo Song with an exquisite effect produced by a quartet placed in the balcony. The spirituals were touched with the naive humor and devotion that is integral to them; there was infectious gaiety and rhythm in the melodious Czechoslovakian Dance Song, a tender mood in the Brahms Bei Nachtlicher Weil.

Soloists Ginny Kidd and Brian Benn are excellent young singers who handled their roles most effectively and the ensemble, in accompanied numbers was well served by the sensitive and adroit pianist Ursula Thomas.

At UVic the final Sunday afternoon concert for this season again featured the excellent wind ensemble under the skilled direction George Corwin.

That this group comprising faculty and students makes such delightful music, is as much due to Corwin's discerning musical intelligence as to the high level of individual skill among the players.

The Richard Strauss Serenade for 13 Winds and Dvorak's Serenade in D were the ensemble items that were separated by an exquisite solo oboe performance by Eileen Gibson, of Britten's Six Metamorphoses after Ovid.

A member of the faculty and first oboe in the Victoria Symphony, Miss Gibson's complete mastery of her instrument evokes the utmost flexibility, clarity and sweetness of tone and dynamic control.

This enchanting concert with its superb musical values was well attended as was the choral concert which filled the McPherson from orchestra pit to rafters and also concluded the season for the Musical Art Society which co-sponsored it with the Metropolitan Church Sanctuary Choir.

Owner Offers Reward For Return of Windows

Police in Central Saanich are on the look-out for 26 stained glass windows stolen before they could be installed in a new house on Senanus Drive.

The owner, Gordon Denford, 3958 Cedar Hill Cross Road, has offered a $100 reward to any person with information leading to the whereabouts of any of the 75-year-old windows.

The story of the missing antiques began when a house of Denford's on Clarence Street in James Bay was demolished and he and his wife decided to take the 29 stained glass windows from the house to put in their new home under construction on Senanus.

The day before the house was to be town down, however, 19 windows were stolen.

The Denfords took the remaining 10 windows out to their new home ready to be taken to the glazier but eight more were stolen before they could be installed.

Denford has since retreived one of the windows which had been pawned at a local antique shop.

Twenty-six are still missing.

"Parts of our house weredesigned specially for the windows," Mrs. Denford explained. "We'll have to throw out the door we've had built if we don't get them back."

"I didn't realize they were such a hot item," she said. "But several people have phoned us saying they've had windows stolen too."

Denford said he would be willing to pay back the money anybody had spent on the windows if they bought them without knowing they were stolen.

"They just can't be replaced," he said.

NOBODY GETS PAID FOR CUTTING ICE

MILLER'S MILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Ice-cutting day is here. For at least three generations the men, women and children of this tiny Herkimer Country hamlet have turned out for the big event.

Some cut the ice on old Miller's Mills Pond, some haul the neat glistening chunks in tractors to the big barn of the community church where others store it. Nobody gets paid.

When it's time, everyone shows up for the job, looking forward to next summer when the ice will be used to churn home-made ice cream at the local meeting hall.

Selecting the time to cut isn't easy; the ice has to be just right.

Euthanasia Coming: MD

Society before too long will be promoting the concept of euthanasia, Dr. Scott Wallace, Progressive Conservative MLA for Oak Bay, said Saturday.

Wallace spoke at an international science education symposium at the University of Victoria.

"We often hear the comment that the patient is merely existing in a vegitative state and would be better off dead," he said.

"That comment, coupled with the philosophy which approves of killing the unborn child (abortion), leads me to believe that society, before too long, will be promoting the concept of euthanasia, which is defined as 'the action of inducing a quiet and easy death'."

Wallace continued: "I hope society will never enforce upon the physician the legal edict to terminate the life of an elderly person ... but once the trend has started, where will it end?"

Over 100 junior and senior secondary school science teachers attended the symposium the first of its kind to be held in Victoria. Teachers came from Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland.

CHESS TOURNAMENT OPEN TO NOVICES

Young chess enthusiasts will have an opportunity to get tournament experience inexpensively next Sunday in Nanaimo.

The March 18 Nanaimo 30-30 open chess tournament will allow all competitors to play at least six half-hour games with a lineup including B.C. masters Bruce Harper and Jonbathan Berry of Vancouver and Ray Kerr of Victoria.

The tournament, open to everyone, will be held at the Nanaimo Regional Library on Fitzwilliam Street and the entry fee has been set at $2.

Registration is at 10 a.m. and the first round will begin shortly after.

TRAFFIC SAFETY AWARDS

Victoria has won its fifth successive certificate of merit, and Saanich its fourth, for having no traffic fatalities during Safe Driving Week. The awards are made annually by the Canada Safety Council.

• THE INSIDE STORY
Gremlin has either a bench or optional bucket front seats—you choose. Gremlin has a rear seat like the others except when ours folds down the accessible luggage capacity expands to 16.7 cubic feet with the optional space saver spare tire. • THE PRICE
Gremlin starts at only

Slater

Slater, Walker of Canada Ltd. reports net income in 1972, before gain on sale of investments, of $1,532,458 or 46 cents a share compared with $112,935 or 12 cents a share the previous year.

Gain on the disposal of investments brought net earnings for the year to $5,262,527 or $1.58 a share, up sharply from $139,349 or 15 cents a share in 1971.

The company also announced it has agreed to sell all the issue and outstanding shares of two of its subsidiaries — Stanley Brock Canada Ltd. and City Chemical and Products Co. Ltd. to Price Wilson Ltd., a subsidiary of Price Co.

Hudson's Bay

Hudson's Bay Co. has announced net earnings of $15,654,000 or a record $1.16 a share for the year ended Jan. 31, 1973, compared with $13,313,000 or 98 cents a share the previous year.

Total sales were ahead by 20.3 per cent to $672,157,000 while retail sales increased by 22.3 per cent to $538,843,000.

The company says in a statement that the improvement in sales and earnings was a result of a buoyant demand for consumer goods and the company's plans to improve productivity and market participation.

In addition, the company benefited from a strong fur market and from higher demand for Canadian petroleum products.

A semi-annual dividend of 28 cents a share has been declared, payable April 19, 1973, to shareholders of record March 16, 1973.

How to Get Those Grants

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

A unique seminar on how to get government aid for Vancouver Island businesses will be held in Victoria, March 21.

About 100 persons are expected to attend, including some businessmen from Vancouver who are interested in obtaining government grants.

A major attraction at the meeting will be W. R. Graham, chief of the Program for Advancement of Industrial Development, Ottawa.

He will outline how new British Columbia projects can obtain up to 50 per cent assistance under his department. He will also outline other federal assistance available to local companies.

Cosh said the seminar will help to overcome the problem of isolation for B.C. businessmen.

He said he understands about 80 per cent of federal grants go to businesses east of Manitoba.

"This is due, in part, to the great distance we are from Ottawa."

He said he has urged the federal department of trade and commerce to set up an ABC office to co-ordinate federal grant programs but without success.

"As a result we have to deal directly with officials in Ottawa. It is often difficult trying to get satisfaction by letter rather than dealing face to face."

He said some Victoria companies miss out on federal grants because the deadline has passed by the time they find out who they should contact and how to apply.

Cosh said the only way British Columbians could be certain of gaining a fair share of government assistance would be by having the federal department establish a grants office in B.C.

He said the one-day seminar would be of immediate assistance to Victorians and he hoped all merchants and industrialists in the area would turn out, particularly small businessmen.

From 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Graham and the other speakers will be available to discuss individual problems with members of the audience.

The program starts at 9 a.m., March 21 in the Empress Hotel ballroom with Graham outlining all federal assistance available to Vancouver Island business.

Other speakers will be:

Sidney Garratt, export development corporation, Vancouver, who will discuss export problems;

Tony Roberts, head of the Capital Region District planning commission, on business and industrial development areas in the district;

S. W. Simpson, director of apprenticeship and industrial training branch of the department of labor in Vancouver, on government aid in personnel development.

Luncheon speaker will be Leslie Hempsall, provincial deputy minister of the department of industrial development, trade and commerce.

Afternoon speakers will be accountant Cosh on monitoring the performance of new and expanded facilities and Bob Dohan of the Victoria industrial development bank who will discuss how to organize a presentation to obtain government assistance.

Brian Small, manager of the chamber, said a special invitation is being extended to lawyers, accountants and others engaged in acting as consultants to businessmen.

Q. As a waitress I receive tips as well as salary. My Canada Pension Plan contributions have been calculated on my basic salary only. I know I must report the amount of my tips as income. Will I be allowed to pay in extra Canada Pension contributions as this would allow me to receive maximum benefits?

A. Yes, you may make additional Canada Pension Plan contributions based on the income you have received in tips. You may make contributions on the additional income you have earned in tips, at a rate of 3.6 per cent.

Q. I have been renting a house for several years and have claimed capital cost allowance as a deduction from the rental income received. In claiming the capital cost allowance, I arrived at a rental loss each year and subtracted the rental loss from my salary earnings in determining my taxable income for the year.

Will the new tax law allow similar claims in 1972 and future years?

A. No. Under the provisions of the new Act, losses created or increased by claiming capital cost allowance on rental property will not be deductible from non-rental income. In other words, capital cost allowance on rental properties may be claimed only to the extent that the amount claimed does not create or increase the taxpayer's net rental loss for the year.

CATHOLIC?
Fellow Catholic laymen, Our Lady of Mt. Carmel is begging for more prayer, penance and sacrifice for our sins and the sins of the world. Will you heed Her pleadings and make this Lenten Season the beginning of a renewed, personal and private effort of prayer, penance and sacrifice, not only for your own benefit but for the spiritual benefit of the children of this Diocese who are in such dire need. When Our Lord set the example for Lent He did not gather a group for a "sensitivity session," nor did He select a committee to talk to death some world problem but rather He went alone into the desert to fast and pray in complete privacy for a full forty days.

BARRETT ARRIVES IN D.C.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Premier Barrett arrived here today to present United States government officials with an alternative proposal for getting Alaskan oil to market.

In brief comments after his arrival, Barrett said details of the B.C. proposal — which he called an "alternative" to the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline and its coastal tanker fleet — will be released simultaneously Tuesday in Ottawa, Victoria and Washington.

Any discussion of the proposal or its details before then would be "premature" he said.

Asked whether the inclusion of Ottawa in the announcements indicated federal participation in the B.C. plan, Barrett replied: "I hope so."

The New Democratic Party premier was to lunch with Canadian embassy officials before meeting this afternoon with senior representatives of the state and interior departments.

John Whitaker, under-secretary of the interior and acting secretary for the ailing Rogers Morton, and Rufus Smith, deputy assistant secretary of state for Canadian affairs, were to discuss the B.C. plans with Barrett and B.C. Resources Minister Bob Williams.

A spokesman for Barrett said copies of the proposal were being made available confidentially today to federal Resources Minister Donald Macdonald, the opposition leaders in Ottawa and the provincial opposition parties in Victoria.

Barrett said his discussions with Whitaker would include an expression of B.C.'s "opposition" to proposals for a pipeline through the Mackenzie Valley of Canada — generally regarded as the main alternative to a trans-Alaska pipeline.

Pullout Chances Increase As Sharp Visits Vietnam

Times News Service

SAIGON — There is a growing conviction among Canadians here that Canada will definitely decide to pull out of the international supervisory force for Vietnam.

The question of whether to pull out of the International Commission of Control and Supervision will be getting serious consideration within the next two weeks, especially by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, who visits Vietnam this week.

What he will see and be told here will not likely be favorable to continuation of Canada's contribution to the international force.

"Firstly," said one Canadian official, "there is no effective ceasefire. Fighting has continued in scattered areas, in some cases more intense than before the ceasefire.

"Secondly, the four-party Joint Military Commission to which the ICCS reports to, has been ineffective. The Viet Cong have not deployed to all the regions and the North Vietnamese last week pulled their delegates out of Hue and Da Nang.

"Thirdly, there is little sign of the two-party JMC the South Vietnamese and the Viet Cong being organized."

Weighing the odds of pulling out at about 50-50, one Canadian officer said there could be either a phased pullout allowing troops from a replacement country to take over, or emergency evacuation.

While few expect the emergency action will be necessary, operations officers confirmed that Canadian troops could be out of the districts of the seven regional headquarters and back in Saigon in 24 hours.

From Saigon, the 250 military men and 40 external affairs employees could be evacuated in a matter of hours by commercial aircraft, military aircraft or by a Canadian destroyer lying off Vietnam waters.

If the word to pull out is given at the end of the 60-day initial Canadian commitment, the most likely procedure is the gradual withdrawal of the troops over a 30-day period.

In Hanoi meanwhile, North Vietnam delivered a list of 108 American prisoners it will release in Hanoi on Wednesday.

The action followed today's suspension of the withdrawal of American troops to insure the Communists release all 287 Americans they still hold.

The Viet Cong promised a list on Tuesday of approximately 30 prisoners of war captured in South Vietnam who will be released in Hanoi on Thursday.

The U.S. delegation radioed the list from the North Vietnamese to Washington for notification of the prisoners' families.

Bui Tin, the chief North Vietnamese spokesman in Saigon, said all those to be released on Wednesday were airmen shot down in late 1967 and 1968. He said they included Lt. Cmdr. John S. McCain III, son of the former commander of the U.S. forces in the Pacific.

John Downey, the last American prisoner of the Korean War, was freed from China today and flew home to see his seriously ill mother in Connecticut.

Peking released the CIA spy after an appeal from President Nixon that he be allowed to join his 75-year-old mother, Mary Downey. His release had been expected as a result of the visits to Peking by Nixon and Henry Kissinger but not until later this year.

The other two Americans known to be held in China, Air Force Maj. Philip Smith and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert Flynn, are scheduled to be freed Thursday.

$17,385 for Cayer

ST. RAYMOND, Que. (CP) — Marc Cayer, a 27-year-old Quebec agronomist held prisoner five years by the North Vietnamese, will receive $17,385 in compensation from the American organization he worked for.

Richard J. Peters, executive director of the Washington-based International Voluntary Services Inc., disclosed the figure here during the weekend and said all maximum figures were used in computing the compensation, which includes back pay, "to give him the most we can."

Cayer signed up with IVS in 1967 for a two-year stint and went to Hue, South Vietnam, in early 1968 at a monthly salary of $80 plus vacation pay and travel and clothing allowances.

He was captured in Hue during the Viet Cong's Tet offensive about a month after his arrival.

He technically ceased to be an IVS employee when his two-year contract expired in 1969.

EGG PRICES UP 7 CENTS

Egg prices will be increased about seven cents a dozen in all city grocery stores by the end of the week.

J. F. Fidler, district manager for Canada Safeway Ltd., said that chain's prices were increased today, after the B.C. Marketing Board announced the price paid to egg producers in the province will increase by seven cents.

Other city grocery stores are expected to follow Safeway's lead, when their weekly egg supply is placed on the shelves. Peter Goddard, manager of Claremont Poultry Ltd., said today.

Goddard blamed the increase on the higher cost of egg production. He said feed has gone up in price about $30 a ton in the last two months, from $78 to $108.

The producer price for a dozen eggs will be: small, 40 cents: medium, 54 cents and large, 57 cents.

New wholesale prices, (quoted by Goddard) are: small, 53 cents; medium, 67 cents and large, 70 cents.

And at the final level, the consumer will pay about: 59 cents for small; 69 cents for medium and 74 cents for large size eggs.

The increase in the price of eggs is not comparable to the fowl slaughter program last June by the federal agriculture department, a department spokesman commented.

He agreed the hike in price was mainly due to feed price increases.

Extended Power Cheered

Wider borrowing powers granted to the Municipal Finance Authority of B.C. are welcomed by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, but he said this would not be an inducement to initiate new works.

Curtis, as former chairman of MFA, had supported the move to wider powers when the previous provincial government was asked to grant them and refused. He is still a director of the authority.

The Saanich mayor pointed out that even though MFA would make borrowing for municipal and regional district undertakings easier, the money still must be repaid and could therefore not be considered the inducement a grant would be.

And although the rate of interest at which MFA can borrow on the open market may be only marginally lower than what could otherwise be obtained, financing through the authority has the advantage of overriding tight money situations because of the volume of borrowing each time MFA goes to market, Curtis pointed out.

MFA has gone to the money market five times in the last three years to provide for municipalities and regional districts the funds needed for sewerage, waterworks and pollution control projects.

In future the authority may also borrow for other local projects such as recreation facilities, parks and public works.

'Copters Rescue Ice Fishermen

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — An early breakup on Lake Simcoe sent windblown floes crashing into shore properties Sunday and stranded 130 ice fishermen until boats and a helicopter rescued them.

Driven by gusts up to 25 miles an hour, huge ice cakes piled up as high as 60 feet in spots and damaged many cottages and boathouses.

Most of those stranded on the ice were picked up by police and volunteers using boats. Two were taken off by helicopter, and others got ashore by jumping from floe to floe.

A party of 12 in a panel truck pulled by a snow tractor escaped when both vehicles plunged into 40 feet of water when the ice suddenly separated as they were trying to cross a one-foot crack.

Witnesses said every wharf in a two-mile stretch between Oro Station and Palm Beach was destroyed. One boathouse near Palm Beach was squeezed by huge ice cakes until its roof popped off and flew 40 feet.

"This has been the craziest winter I have ever seen on Lake Simcoe," said Ken Palmer of Jackson's Point, an owner of fishing huts who also owned the sunken tractor and truck.

Elsewhere in Ontario, heavy rains caused some flooding of highways near Windsor. As many as three inches fell in southwestern Ontario. The weather office at Toronto International Airport recorded 1.21 inches of rain by late Sunday afternoon in the London area, .94 inches at Kitchener and Simcoe, and .92 in Metropolitan Toronto.

However, provincial flood control officials showed little worry. They said warm weather earlier in the week melted much of the snow and the heavy rains were not enough to cause serious flooding.

Secret Phone Aids Belfast Arrests

BELFAST (AP) — Fifty-six people were charged with serious crimes in the first six days of March in Northern Ireland as the troubled province's security forces stepped up their drive against sectarian violence.

Police gave much of the credit for the arrests to a secret telephone system which guarantees anonymity to anyone calling in with information.

Charges include murder, attempted murder, carrying firearms and explosives, hijacking and armed robbery. Total arrests so far this year stand at 294, both Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Despite the arrests British troops faced new attacks from Irish Republican Army guerrillas early today in the Creggan area of Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second city.

A military patrol came under sniper fire and troops said they hit one gunman.

The bombing came after a troubled weekend during which the army arrested 99 members of the militant Protestant Ulster Defense Association as they descended on a Catholic quarter in northern Belfast.

The UDA men were armed with cudgels and two with guns. Eleven were arrested and the rest released.

Peking, Tokyo In Air Talks

PEKING (Reuter) — Japanese officials have opened negotiations in Peking on the conclusion of an air agreement with China.

Japan submitted proposals for an air agreement late last year, following the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

City Police Retirements

Two senior members of the Victoria police department will retire in the next two months.

They are Inspector Richard Berry, 59, head of the traffic division, who will retire March 30 after 32 years service, and Patrol Inspector Lester Clark, 53, who will retire April 30 after 27 years service.

Modern Sailboats Take Aim At Century-Old Speed Records

LONDON (AP) — Big ships under sail will try to beat the times set by the legendary clippers of the last century in an around the world race to take place in 1975.

The race, between England and Australia and back again, will include a 15,000-mile leg which is more than four times the maximum distance raced by sailing boats until now. Entries are limited to fully crewed yachts with a maximum overall length of 83 feet.

The Cutty Sark, now in honored drydock retirement in Britain's maritime museum in East London, is probably the best known of the clippers which used to race in fierce competition for the lucrative wool and tea trade between the Far East and Europe.

But recent research shows that the fastest journeys were probably made by the less famous Patriarch which is believed to have done the London to Sydney, Australia, run in 67 days and the return leg in 69 days.

Several attempts have been made to beat these times, the principal bid being by the late Sir Francis Chichester, single handed in Gipsy Moth V. He sailed to Sydney in 106 days and back again in 113 days.

Experts consider that the advances made in ship construction techniques, together with the availability of new materials and improved sailing technology, give the modern craft a fair chance of beating the times set by their predecessors.

The Thermopylae, which was built in 1869, averaged 8.2 knots on its fastest recorded journey between Sydney and London. Any advantage to present day racers can be misleading because the clippers were travelling over much greater distances than boats are usually subjected to today.

The distance from Sydney to London is around 15,000 miles. The longest organized race for fully-crewed yachts has been the 3,500 mile Cape Town to Rio event, although this year sees the inauguration of the Whitebred race. This will take the racers around the world in four stages between Plymouth, Cape Town, Sydney and Rio.

The organizer of the race, the London Financial Times newspaper, says the race will be sailed as closely as possible under the conditions prevailing in the days of the clippers. This means, for example, that a yacht hit by bad weather could put into port to carry out repairs.

Sponsors will give three principal awards, one for the shortest time at sea and one each for the fastest passage time on each of the two legs between London and Sydney and back again.

Winners will receive trophies rather than financial rewards. "People who are rich enough to own boats like this wouldn't be interested in cash prizes," the spokesman explained.

Melted Canadian Coins Return Handsome Profit

OTTAWA (CP) — Exports of Canadian coins to be melted down abroad have apparently become a lucrative and secretive business, but government officials say controls on the operation are not being considered—at least for now.

Coin dealers have found the export business so lush that they have recently been offering to pay up to 30 per cent over the face value of coins.

So they insist on coins minted in 1966 or before. Canadian coins since the end of 1967 have been nickel.

Officials are only assuming the dealers are exporting the coins. The Currency and Exchange Act prohibits melting or breaking up Canadian currency in Canada.

A trade department official said Friday there is no law against exporting Canadian coins.

NICKEL REPLACES SILVER

An embargo was imposed in 1968 amid a coin shortage in Canada, but it was lifted in 1971, after the nickel coins began to replace the silver in pockets and purses.

Jerome Forman, consultant to Charlton Numismatics Ltd. of Toronto, denied knowledge of the portion of his firm's coin sales shipped outside the country.

"We just don't keep records like that," he said of the firm, which calls itself Canada's largest coin dealer.

He said some of the coins—which the company buys in minimum $50 lots—are sold in Canada and some in the United States. All were sold to dealers, but he professed ignorance about the final use of the coins.

He also refused to disclose the volume of business the company does.

An official of the Royal Canadian Mint says the export business really began in 1967, when the value of the silver in the coins began to outstrip the face value of the coin itself.

The government reacted first by converting to nickel coins, then clamping a lid on exports to prevent a worsening shortage.

With the price of pure silver now running about $2.40 an ounce, the dealers can afford to pay premium prices to get the pre-1967 variety.

The mint official said the pre-1967 silver dollar, for example, contains .60 ounces of fine silver. That's worth about $1.44 on the commodity market today, although the price fluctuates daily.

With domestic currency needs filled by the new nickel coins, finance department officials say there is no monetary damage done by present levels of exports.

"It's strictly a moral question," said one official.

"Is it right to permit exports to people who will melt the coins down when melting them down is illegal in Canada?"

Hidden Device Spies on Mail

TORONTO (CP) — The post office has developed a tiny radio transmitter that has provided "rather sensational" information on the causes of delays in the mails, says J. A. H. Mackay, Canada's deputy postmaster-general.

Mackay told the Canadian Circulation Audit Bureau Inc. that the transmitter can be put into an envelope and mailed like an ordinary letter.

The transmitter then can be used as an electronic measuring device to check on the movement of mail through the postal system.

Under test for 18 months, the device was described as a "wafer-thin, flexible printed circuit board" which emits a radio signal that can be picked up by monitors strategically placed in the system.

"As each piece of test mail emits its own unique signal we can get a pretty accurate picture of where a piece of mail is in the processing system," said Mackay.

"Of course we can also detect when a piece of mail has not arrived at the point it should have and commence action to locate the mail and speed it on its way."

He said the tests have helped the post office evaluate its service.

"We knew our service wasn't what it should be, but we were perhaps inclined to blame it on weather conditions and inability of airlines to fly from point to point, thereby delaying our mail.

"What we found instead was that the weather was a very minimal factor . . . Failure within our own processing system made up by far the majority of our breakdowns."

BENITA, 8, PLAYS SANTA

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — When 8-year-old Benita Hopkins found herself locked out of her house, she tried the only entry she could think of.

She started down the chimney.

"If Canta Claus can do it, so can I," thought the little girl. But she didn't think about getting stuck.

About five feet down the stack she found herself wedged and had to shout for help. Her brother, age 6, heard the screams and summoned a nearby road construction crew.

"I don't think she'll be sold on any more Santa Claus stories from now on," said workman Roger Stringham, who helped pull Benita to safety.

Healthy Industry Suing

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Four members of the booming health food industry filed a $500-million damage suit in federal court here Friday, charging the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) was trying to ruin its business by calling health food advocates "quacks" and "faddists."

The suit was filed by the food dealers in California, one in Texas and one in New Jersey, all members of the National Nutritional Foods Association and the suit is on behalf of all dealers in health food products.

According to the suite, FDA press releases have labelled health food advocates "nutrition quacks," "food faddists," "health quacks" and manufacturers of "shotgun mixtures."

"These acts constitute an improper interference with the free-enterprise system and the right of the American consumer to know the truth about nutrition and the food he eats," the dealers said.

In addition to the $500-million damages, the dealers asked the court to halt what was termed "an attempt to conduct a trial by publicity and press release."

SYSTEM SPEEDS 3RD-CLASS MAIL

TORONTO (CP) — J. A. H. Mackay, Canada's deputy postmaster-general, said Friday the post office plans to introduce a system of assured delivery of third-class mail.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Circulation Audit Bureau Inc. that the post office suffered "a large reduction in third class mail volumes" in the 1970-71 fiscal year.

He said the reduction largely was a result of curtailed service during three months of rotating strikes and shutdowns in 1970.

"Some of our customers switched to other forms of delivery and never returned," he said, referring to private carriers.

Mr. Mackay said third-class volumes increased last year by almost 22 per cent "principally through the determined efforts of our marketing people who are now working closer to our customers."

The assured delivery for third class mail will be introduced "later this year" and would be aimed at eventually providing the sort of reliability now provided first class mail.

Land Act Draws Jeers, Catcalls

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cheers, jeers and catcalls punctuated a noisy crowded meeting at Ladner Sunday as speakers from four British Columbia political parties gave their views on the controversial proposed Land Commission Act.

Delta MLA Carl Liden of the New Democratic Party, who was repeatedly booed by the overflow crowd of more than 600, said the act was introduced in a bid to save farmland and such legislation should have geen passed 20 years ago before large sections of farmland were lost to developers in the Fraser Valley, Okanagan and Vancouver Island areas.

Liden said the proposed act, Bill 42, was also aimed at controlling foreign ownership of land in B.C.

MLA Hartley Dent (NDP—Skeena) was nearly drowned out by jeers when he said: "We welcome suggestions on the bill but we are not going to be stampeded."

RESENTS ALLEGATIONS

Dent took issue with charges shouted by members of the crowd that he and other members of the NDP government were acting like communist dictators.

"I resent very much allegations that I or any other MLA believes in dictatorship," he said.

The two NDP members were the only speakers at the meeting in favor of the Land Commission Act. Social Credit MLA Don Phillips for Peace River South called it a "vicious, undemocratic bill" that gives the provincial cabinet "power over every square inch of B.C."

Phillips said the bill went against a movement to decentralize government and was made without prior consultation with the farmers.

He asked why the greenbelt fund established by the previous Social Credit government was not used to protect farmland and claimed that "hardly a cent has been spent since the Aug. 30 election."

OPPOSES METHOD

Conservation MP John Reynolds said he was not against the aim of the act but opposed the method which he said violates the federal Bill of Rights provision for enjoyment of property.

B.C. Conservative leader Derril Warren said he found during a tour of the province that people thought the bill was to preserve farmland but opposed it when they discovered all land was included.

Warren said the bill has both expropriation and retroactive powers and called for its withdrawl for six months to reconsider its effect.

MLA Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said the bill will not prevent foreign ownership of land.

He warned that the act would give the government power to amalgamate farms and create tenant farmers. He also called for withdrawal of the bill and suggested instead a provincial planning commission to take a land inventory and produce plans that would be passed by the legislature.

COMPUTERS OF DOOM REJECTED

LONDON (Reuter) — Relax, doomsday is not just around the corner, after all.

That's the reassuring message from British researchers who made the first scientific analysis of the famous 1971 report on world prospects by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

THE MIT report The Limits to Growth, concluded that pollution, population growth and exhaustion of the earth's resources may spell the end of man in about 100 years.

Produced at the height of the great ecology debate — whem, in the United States at least, environment seemed to overtake peace as the catchword of protest — the report's credibility was enhanced by sophisticated computer techniques used in its development.

A team at Sussex University used similar techniques to dissect the MIT report. The verdict: It's far too gloomy.

Sussex experts say computer predictions are a great idea but it all depends what information is fed into them. They maintain Americans fed their computers with a gloomy set of data and failed to take proper account of man's ability to alter course, to control his fate by means of better technology and to change his values.

"Man's fate is shaped not only by what happens to him but also by what he does," says Professor Marie Jahoda, a social psychologist and one of 14 contributors to the Sussex University's report.

Professor Christopher Freeman, in his introduction, seems to support those who distrust the growing glorification of the computer:

"The computer fetishist endows the computer model with a validity and an independent power which altogether transcends the mental models which are its essential basis."

In other words, man still does the thinking.

Deeply upset by the Sussex report was Professor Dennis Meadows, who headed the MIT team.

His first complaint was that the university was too hasty in publishing its counter-report.

Meadows gave the Sussex scientists preliminary drafts of his technical documents and encouraged them to analyse the work. He also requested that specific comments be released only when the final MIT report becomes available.

Sussex jumped the gun, however, saying that the issues were too important for delay.

The British scientists fear that faced with overwhelming threat, as posed in the Limits to Growth, people will look away from the problems rather than tackle them. Such pessimism as expressed by MIT might also undermine the credibility of scientists trying to solve the worlds problems, they say.

Multiculturalism Chief Sees West Coast Centre

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal minister of multiculturalism, Stanley Haidasz, on his first visit as a cabinet minister to the West Coast, said he has found "very vibrant" minority activities in the west.

In an interview here Sunday, he said he would like to see Vancouver have a multiculturalism centre for the activities of various minority groups, and added that such a centre could be planned and built and largely financed by federal funds.

Haidasz said he would call for a national multi-cultural conference, to be held later this year at a site still to be selected.

'Stand Firm'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Environmental Council sent a letter to Premier Dave Barrett Saturday asking him to remain firm in his stand "against depletion of non-renewable resources" in the Arctic.

Delegates to the council's annual meeting endorsed the letter which said any involvement by B.C. in the shipment of Arctic oil to the United States would "lock B.C. into the U.S.A.'s increasing spiral of consumption, wastage and mis-use of non-renewable energy resources."

ALLENWOOD, Pa. (AP) — Clifford Irving, serving a 30-month federal prison term in connection with the bogus autobiography of billionaire recluse Howard Hughes, has been transferred from here to a Connecticut prison after liquor was found in his possession. Max Weger, supervisor of Allenwood prison farm, said Thursday he did not know where Irving got the liquor.

LONDON (Reuter) — The Occidental North Sea exploration group announced Thursday that an oil strike it made off the Scottish coast two months ago should prove to be a major find. The Occidental group, which includes Canadian newspaper publisher Lord Thomson as a major shareholder, plans to start production late next year or early in 1975.

Trustees Vote To Separate Pay

DUNCAN — A motion recommending teachers' salaries be separated from the current system of school financing has been passed by Cowichan school board.

The recommendation will be put before the 1973 convention of the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

Currently schools are financed with a fixed grant, dependent on the number of pupils in the school. This, according to trustee Terry Taylor, puts rural schools at a handicap since large amounts of the grant go toward busing costs.

He said the system leads to experienced and therefore most costly teachers staying in urban districts where student transportation is covered by public transit and more money can be put into teachers' salaries.

If the government grant was 75 per cent for example he said, then the difference to a school district between a $12,000 a year and an $8,000 a year teacher, would only be $1,000.

Rural schools, he said, would therefore be in a better position to have more experienced teachers.

Crash Kills Ucluelet Man

NANIMO — A Ucluelet man was killed and his passenger taken to Nanamo hospital, following a two-car collision on the weekend.

The dead man, 33-year-old Glen Callow, was travelling south on the Island Highway near Long Lake Friday night when his car collided with another car. Callow's passenger, Douglas Robson, 25, was reported in good condition in Nanaimo hospital today.

The driver of the other vehicle, northbound on the Island Highway, was released from hospital Saturday, after overnight observation.

Sidney has issued $344,191 worth of permits in February, bringing the 1973 total to $498,970, compared with $217,290 in February last year and a cumulative figure of $371,710.

Central Saanich reports $350,000 in permits last month and a two-month total of $488,779 compared with $153,400 in February 1972 and a cumulative figure of $353,200.

Retirement plans. "When I retire, we'd like to live on Gabriola permanently. At that time my London Life policy will be of great value in supplementing my income."

"When we bought this island property the bank said there was no better collateral than my London Life policy."

Constructive use of money. "A couple of years after I came to Vancouver I met my wife Connie," says Bob Gray, a film production manager. "That's when I decided to do something about my future family responsibilities and bought a London Life policy.

"Years later when I visited my bank manager for a loan to buy our island cottage I showed him that policy. He said, as far as he was concerned, there wasn't any better collateral and gave me the money right away. Frankly I hadn't appreciated that useful aspect of the policy until then."

Supplementary income. "When the children are grown up and Connie and I move to Gabriola Island, my London Life policy will be a great financial help.

"My yearly dividends now come to quite a sizable amount. That's another aspect of my policy that I didn't appreciate initially. Not only does it provide protection but it's a good investment, too."

Saints Simply Too Good

MONTREAL — Victoria First United Saints, winners of the Canadian junior women's basketball championship Sunday, may move up to senior "A" ranks next season in hopes of finding stronger opposition.

They topped St. Laurent Mouff 71-36 Sunday after chalking up an 88-26 triumph over Edmonton Mysterians Saturday for a perfect 2-0 record and the title.

Marg Mainwaring, who sparked the Victorians, joined two clubmates, Jill Smith and Marion Main, on the allstar team.

Miss Mainwaring fire 22 points Sunday and 17 on Saturday to top Saint scorers each game. During the game against Mouff, she also led play on the boards, pulling down 10 offensive and two defensive rebounds. Clubmates Ronni Hind and Mairi Anne Longmore each collected six offensive rebounds Sunday.

Joining the three Victoria girls on the all-star team were Yolande Deschamps of Mouff and Amanda Holloway of Mysterians.

St. Laurent showed the most fight against Saints despite trailing 22-1 early in the game and 35-17 at half time.

But Miss Deschamps, who led the club with 16 points and three other Mouff players fouled out early in the second half.

"This really dampens any chances they had to rally," said jubilant Victoria coach Moe Turner.

Turner also had some words on the future of Saints, who jumped into the national junior tourney despite eligibility to defend the Canadian juvenile title they captured last year.

"I think next year we might try to go senior," he said. This might be accomplished by joining one of the Vancouver leagues or by resurrecting the Inter-City League.

"I can't see staying down when you can't get the competition you need to improve," Turner added.

Bays' Best Friend Was the Clock

BY JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

"The biggest thing about this game," said Oak Bay coach Don Horwood, "was that the clock ran out at the right time."

It ran out in time to give the Bays the Vancouver Island senior boys' basketball championship Saturday night at University of Victoria gymnasium by way of a 53-51 squeaker over Mt. View Hornets in the final of the eight-team tournament.

The clock squelched a comeback bid by Mt. View that had the biggest crowd of the year at UVic gym in a frenzy.

Behind 15-4 after a disastrous first quarter, coach Wayne Erickson's gang spent the rest of the night making up for it. Hornets got within two points is the closing seconds, thanks largely to some exceptional shooting by Dennis Daviault, who ran in four free throws and a long corner shot.

But the deciding points came at the other end of the court when Thad Newman sank a pair of foul shots for the Bays that clinched the win.

Bays and Hornets won berths in the B.C. high school championships, a four-day affair opening a week Wednesday at Vancouver's Pacific Coliseum. They'll be joined either by Nanaimo Hubsters, the consolation winners, or Mt. Doug Rams, who finished third on the championship side of the Island tourney.

Nanaimo exercised its right to challenge Mt. Doug for a berth at Vancouver and the game will be played Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Mt. Doug.

Sixteen teams will compete in Vancouver.

Bays used the same tactics they employed two weeks ago against Victoria High to win the city championship — a full-court press. It got them enough early points to hang on and Horwood plans to use the same strategy through the B.C. tournament.

Mt. Douglas took third in the championship flight earlier Saturday by downing Campbell River Tyees 54-42 while Nanaimo captured the consolation final 61-59 over Powell River Tartans.

Brian Sutherland-Jones was the key to Bays' victory. He led the team in scoring with 17 points and still was able to hold Hornets' big gun, Gary Budd, to only six points.

Chris Trumpy, winner of The Times Trophy as the tournament's most valuable player, added 16 points for Oak Bay. Kevin Gilbert counted 14 for Mt. View.

Trumpy, who grabbed eight rebounds Saturday, had 18 points and 10 rebounds in Bays' first tourney game and 24 points and five rebounds in their second game.

Chosen to the Times first all-star team were Trumpy, Sutherland-Brown and Grant Boland of Oak Bay, Paul Mosher of Mt. Doug and Scott Littlejohn of Nanaimo.

Second-team all-stars were Gilbert, Daviault and Budd of Mt. View, Rick Johnes of Mt. Doug and Clint Cameron of Campbell River.

Honorable mention went to Dave Hagstrom of Mt. View, Gary Morras of Campbell River, Steve Duck of Powell River and Newman of Oak Bay.

POWELL RIVER (59) — Ian Soles 2, Don MacLeod 5, Pierre Lopez, Steve Rourke 4, Steve Duck 22, Roger Bouchie 15, John Belrose 1, Rob Christiansen 10.

Manitoba Gets Value From a $200 Coach

Bisons clinched the crown with a 70-52 victory over Memorial University Beothuks of Newfoundland, giving Gurban's gang a perfect 3-0 record in the four-team round-robin tournament.

In Sunday's nightcap, London Boxing Club of Victoria created a three-way tie for second place by beating Windsor AKO 64-53. Boxers, Windsor and Memorial finished with 1-2 marks.

In Saturday's contests, Memorial edged Boxing Club 60-59 while Windsor lost 69-68 to Manitoba, AKO missing three close shots in the final minute that would have reversed the decision.

Manitoba won its first two Canadian crowns under Don Hunter, who moved up this season to coach the school's varsity team in the Great Plains Athletic Conference.

"I needed the extra dollars that go with the job," he explained after Bisons' victory Sunday.

He was hired for $200.

Brian Rumsey, one of two Bisons voted to the tournament all-star team, led Manitoba with 17 points. The other Manitoban to make the all-stars was Larry Randall.

Most valuable player was Ronald Tobin of Memorial also an all-star. Duff McCaghey of London Boxing Club and Dan Devin of Windsor completed the team.

Honorable mention went to Roger McBride of Manitoba, Ted Buckle of Memorial, Frank Lasorda of Windsor and Jim McKay of Boxing Club.

Wisdsor and Boxing Club remained close until midway through the first half when coach Dave Wirtanen's Boxers pulled away with some hot outside shooting.

Extra Playoff Required

Carson Bulldozers and Metro Toyota fought to a 2-2 deadlock Sunday at Pearkes Arena and forced another game in the round-robin Vancouver Island Senior Girls' Ice Hockey League playoff final.

Lisa Vanderhooft scored both Bulldozer goals while Diane Daniels and Janice Breedon replied for Metro. Both teams had 3-1 records before the Sunday meeting.

Victoria Optimists captured the Island midget title the same day with a 2-0 decision over Racquet Club on goals by Karen Daniels and Jill Munro.

BASEBALL great Frankie Frisch died today in Wilmington, Del., almost five weeks after being injured in an automobile accident. Frisch, who was 74, had a career batting average of .316 during 28 seasons in the National League.

Short-Handed Cougars Toss Cents a Scare

A shorthanded Victoria Cougar team drew honors for effort Sunday, but it failed to improve their slumping Western Canada Junior Hockey League fortunes.

The Cougars lost a game and winger Frank Hyndman on Saturday night but came back Sunday to throw a king-sized scare into Calgary Centennials before bowing 6-5.

Hyndman suffered a severe elbow injury in Saturday's 8-0 loss to Medicine Hat when cross-checked by Tiger defenceman Jim McCrimmon. The 19-year-old winger is expected to be sidelined for the balance of the season, one which ends next Saturday when the Cougars entertain Regina Pats in Memorial Arena.

Although only four minors were dealt out to each team, the refereeing of Jules Zwick incensed Victoria coach Bob Briscoe. Briscoe was especially disturbed when the official failed to tag Medicine Hat's Lanny McDonald with a penalty after the Tiger ace high-sticked Victoria defenceman Kim Clackson.

Clackson required six stitches to close a cut about the mouth.

Zwick handed the Cougars a bench mnor and a "gross misconduct" penalty at 19:56 of the final period for what he termed "obscene gestures" by Victoria trainer Jack Anderson.

Ed Johnstone scored two of his first four goals in the 32 seconds of play, and the Cougars were never in the game as Tigers out-shot the dispirited visitors 53-18.

The shutout was the second of the season for ex-Cougar Sam Clegg and atoned for his shaky effort in the teams' previous meeting, a 10-7 Medicine Hat triumph in Victoria.

Without Hyndman, down to only 12 skaters and playing their fourth game in five days, the Cougars were expected to be easy prey Sunday night in Calgary. It started out that way with Calgary jumping off to a 3-1, first-period lead.

Russ Wiechnik made it 4-1 in the opening minute of the second period with a soft goal that prompted Briscoe to yank starting goalie Danny Rogers. Perry Mulhall came in and turned in a standout effort to hold Calgary to two goals the rest of the way.

Trailing 5-2 after two periods, the Cougars went to the attack and cut Calgary's margin to one goal, 6-5, with about eight minutes remaining.

Al McLaren and Terry Ewasiuk both missed chances to tie the game in the final minutes when thwarted on clear-cut scoring runs at Calgary netminder John Davidson.

Cougars play in Edmonton tonight and wind up their 1972-73 road season with a game in Medicine Hat on Tuesday, then return to play the Oil Kings on Victoria ice Wednesday.

Elsewhere in the league, Swift Current Broncos humbled Regina 9-2. Winnipeg edged Vancouver Nats 4-2 and Saskatoon Blades wrapped up first place in the Eastern Division with a 2-1 victory over Flin Flon Bombers.

Gulls Nip Flyers

Juan de Fuca Gulls and Fuller Lake Flyers staged a cliffhanger for more than 700 spectators Sunday at Juan de Fuca Arena as they opened their best-of-three Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League final.

Jolted by a blistering Flyer surge in the third period, the Gulls barely escaped defeat in a 10-minute overtime session and then snatched a 6-5 triumph on Dave Archibald's goal at 7:06 of a second overtime period — a sudden-death affair.

Archibald had also rescued the Gulls in the first overtime session, counting with less than two minutes remaining after Clint Eccles had shot the Flyers into a 5-4 lead at 1:37.

Kevin Alexander also scored twice and Bruce Armitage and Al Goldade notched singles for the Gulls, who held a 3-0 lead after two periods and staggered under a four-goal, third-period Fuller Lake outburst that left the clubs deadlocked at 4-4 at the end of regulation time.

Mike Rogerson, with two tallies, Brian Smith and Allan Glendening scored for the Flyers, who will be on home ice for tonight's second game at 8:45.

Gulls will leave Juan de Fuca Arena at 6:30 and club officials say there will be room on the bus for some fans, at $2 each.

Third game, if required, will be at Juan de Fuca at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Bruins Pin Hopes on Defence

By The Canadian Press

Defence is the key to any championship club, and coach Bep Guidolin was happy with his Boston Bruin defensive corps after Sunday night's 5-3 victory over Montreal Canadiens.

"The only way this team is going to win from here on in is to be defence minded," said the Boston coach who has been concentrating on the defending Stanley Cup champion's defence since taking over the National Hockey League club earlier this year.

"If we hadn't been defence-minded tonight, it would have been over in the first period."

The Bruins shored up their goaltending problems a week ago by acquiring Jacques Plante from Toronto Maple Leafs. The veteran goalie had to face only 21 Montreal shots.

And it was Boston's checking line that turned the game around for the Bruins. While Don Marcotte shadowed Mostreal's speedy Yvan Cournoyer, linemates Doug Roberts and Greg Sheppard took care of the late scoring.

Roberts cracked the eventual winner at 11:58 of the third period and Sheppard got the insurance marker at 18:31, just 15 seconds before Guy Lapointe tallied Montreal's third goal.

The loss ended Montreal's unbeaten road record at 15 games, an NHL mark Canadiens now share with the 1940-41 Bruins and 1951-52 Red Wings.

Elsewhere Sunday the scores were: New York Rangers 4, Toronto 2; Detroit Red Wings 3, St. Louis Blues 1; Philadelphia Flyers 3, Pittsburgh Penguins 2; Minnesota North Stars 2, New York Islanders 1 and Chicago Black Hawks 5, California Golden Seals 1.

Montreal blanked Detroit 2-0 Saturday while the Rangers clipped Pittsburgh 5-4, Toronto edged Minnesota 4-3, Philadelphia nipped Atlanta Flames 2-1, St. Louis downed the Islanders 5-4, Los Angeles Kings took California 4-2 asd Chicago beat Vancouver Canucks 4-2.

"They gave us a pretty good scare at the start of the third period," said Emile Francis, Rangers' coach and general manager, after the Leafs had rallied from a 3-0 deficit with fast goals by Jim McKenny and George Ferguson.

Bill Fairbairn clinched the victory with his 25th of the season at 7:12 of the third period, marking the second straight game in which the New Yorkers had been forced to hold off a late rally by the opposition.

They blew a 4-1 lead the previous night before subduing Pitsburgh.

Swim Marks Take Dousing

NEW WESTMINISTER (CP) — An assault on Canadian swimming records wrapped up the 10th annual Canadian Dolphin invitational swim meet Sunday.

The 10-member Russian team produced little Sunday, over-shadowed for the second day by a strong Santa Clara women's team from California.

About 90 minutes later the California swimmer churned to a national record in the 100-yard freestyle, clipping four-tenths of a second from the old record of 54.4 held by Angela Coughlan of Toronto.

Barbie Mitchell of the Tacoma Swim Club accounted for another record in the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:25.6.

Canadian Olympic silver medalist Leslie Cliff set the other individual open record, 4:22.0 in the 400 individual medley.

Jets Fizzle Out in Face Of Drubbing by Cleveland

By The Canadian Press

The loss didn't do much in the way of allowing their closest rivals to make inroads into their lead atop the World Hockey Association's Western Division.

The hurts were to their dignity and their physical well-being.

The loss, worst in the fledgling WHA season for the Jets, came at home before a near-sellout crowd of 8,417 fans and knocked high-scoring Chris Bordeleau out of the game and winger Dunc Rousseau from the lineup for at least a week.

It also ended any challenges to the Cleveland goaltending laurels which Gerry Cheevers has clung to through the season.

Going into the game, Winnipeg goalies had allowed 205 goals to 204 for Cleveland. But Ernie Wakely, who had been responsible for putting Winnipeg within range, wilted after allowing two goals in the first period.

Trevino Fights Off Foes

MIAMI (AP) — Lee Trevino blew a four-stroke lead then, as nervy as a Mexican highwayman, fought off a crowding field with a dramatic stretch run Sunday to win the Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament for his second victory in three weeks.

Trevino, who led at the end of every round after an opening 64, pushed his winnings to $98,543 for the season after his one-under-par 71 on the Blue Monster course, a 7,065-yard layout at the Doral Country Club. His first-place cheque of $30,000 put him atop the year's money-winning list.

He finished with a 276, 12 under par, and won by a single stroke over Australian Bruce Crampton and Tom Weiskopf.

Crampton fashiond a brilliant final-round 65, seven under par. He came from seven strokes off the pace to tie for the lead in the run down the stretch but drifted back when Trevino canned consecutive birdies on the 15th and 16th, then made a crucial par putt on the final hole.

Weiskopf pulled within one stroke with a 30-foot birdie putt on the 72hd hole that gave him a 67 for the day.

Jack Nicklaus, the 1972 champion and the pre-tourney favorite this year, could do no better than a 69 for 285 and a tie for 16th place — his poorest finish of the season.

Lo Tough for United

Ken Lo, a dentisty student at the University of British Columbia who guards the goal for Khalsa in the Inter-City Soccer League, pulled the scoring teeth of Victoria West-United for 60 minutes Sunday in Vancouver.

It was then that Stu Taylor, who came on at the start of the second half in the interlocking match, fired the first of his two goals that gave United a 2-0 victory and sole possession of the Pacific Coast Soccer League lead.

Taylor scored again at 75 minutes as Khalsa continued to threaten, depite domination of exchanges by United, through breakaway tactics and a strongly-defensive 3-5-2 formation.

On the occasions the Victorians were able to crack holes in the Khalsa defence earlier in the contest, Lo produced some outstanding saves while United goalie Ash Douglas was called on to handle only a few difficult chances.

Gorge Molsons, the other Victoria PCSL entry, jumped into a temporary tie for the lead on Saturday by defeating University of British Columbia Thunderbirds 4-1 before approximately 350 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

And Gorge beat the netminder with the best goals-against average in the league. Basically a defensive club, Thunderbirds are anchored by goalie Greg Weber, who played on the national tam several times last year.

He started his own downfall Saturday by being called for an illegal motion while Doug Marshall was taking a penalty shot, which went wide.

Thunderbirds evened the count at 1-1 when Gorge goalie Graham Lee was called on a "talking" infraction and Daryl Sampson scored on a pass from a indirect free kick.

In other matches, New Westminster Blues regained second place by trampling Inter-Italia 6-1 on Sunday while Simon Fraser University Clansmen upset North Shore United 3-1 in an interlocking contest Saturday.

Cliff Avenue United blanked Vancouver Olympics 1-0 in a Inter-City League match Saturday.

HE'S RIGHT, said veteran outfield star Willie Mays (above) after being fined an estimated $500 Sunday by manager Yogi Berra for missing practice and leaving baseball camp of New York Mets without telling Berra. Mays, who left Florida training camp Thursday to visit ailing wife in California, said his Friday return flight was cancelled and later flight delayed. "I should have called Yogi," said Willie, "I was wrong."

Crimson Tide Rolls Over Mainland Side

VANCOUVER — Victoria Crimson Tide took and impressive first step Saturday in a bid to retain the McKechnie Cup — emblematic of inter-city rugby supremacy — by rolling past Vancouver Nor'Wests 29-9.

In the other opening match of the four-team, round-robin competition, University of British Columbia Thunderbirds fielded their traditionally fast and well-conditioned squad and galloped to 29-17 triumph over Vancouver Reps.

Results of the opening matches suggest the trophy-holder will be decided in Victoria on April 17, when the T-Birds tangle with the Tide. The Victorians will also be at home for their second match, against Vancouver on March 24.

With Gillie Greig playing a standout role in a strong Victoria defensive performance that kept Nor'West backs bottled up most of the way, the Tide turned on the power with a balanced attack that produced six tries, two of them by Rick Rollins.

Other Victoria tries were scored by Bruce Howe, Tim Cummings, Doug Pettman and Alan Reese, who also booted a conversion.

Bob Hindson kicked a 40-yard penalty goal for the Tide, which held a 15-6 lead at the half.

Mike Southwell Retains Crown

VANCOUVER — Mike Southwell of Victoria YM-YWCA retained his 125½-pound title Saturday during the B.C. seniors wrestling championships and was selected to the provincial squad that will compete in the Canadian championships in Thunder Bay, March 15-17.

One-Man Show Gives Nanaimo a Standoff

Bateman scored all three Nanaimo goals to give his team a 3-3 tie with the league leaders. Russ Ball, Rudi Kuebler and Jerry Punt scored for Royals.

University of Victoria Vikings, playing at Centennial Stadium in Victoria Sunday, posted a 2-0 win over Lusitanos to move into a second-place tie with Oak Bay, two points behind Royals.

Peter Mason and Vic Escude scored for UVic.

Records Set

ROTTERDAM (AP) — Two Bulgarian women established world records at the fourth European indoor athletic championship here Sunday.

In the high jump, Yordanka Blagueva improved to 6 feet 3⅝ inches the 6-3½ record she shared with Rosemary Witschas of East Germany.

Stefka Yordanova in the 800 metres finished in 2:02.65. Her compatriot, Svetla Zlateva, set the previous record of 2:02.9 earlier this year.

Saskatchewan Wraps It Up

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan's Harvey Mazinke rink of Regina completed the formality of winning the Canadian curling championship Saturday by downing Northern Ontario, 7-4, in a last-round match before 2350 fans.

Mazinke and his partners were never in trouble against the Don Harry rink of Sudbury — and it wouldn't have mattered if they had lost.

The Regina rink, which has curled together for six years, cinched the title Friday night by beating the Lou Dugre rink, representing New Brunswick, 9-5.

Saskatchewan ended with nine wins and one loss, with Ontario and Nova Scotia tie for second with six wins and four defeats.

It took a pair of last-end misses by British Columbia skip Jack Tucker of Richmond to propel the Peter Hope foursome of Dartmouth into a tie for second place with the Ontario crew skipped by Paul Savage of Scarborough.

Tucker fanned two attempted takeout to let Hope and his mates escape with an 11-10 victory. Ontario flattened the staggering Manitoba entry led by Dan Fink of Winnipeg, 12-10, as the front end refused to let Manitoba launch a last-end comeback.

In other last-round games, Alberta's Mel Watchorn crew of Fairview reached an even 5-5 record by stopping Quebec's Dave Moon of Montreal, 8-6, and Prince Edward Island's Bob Dillon of Charlottetown halted New Brunswick, 8-7.

All games were close, but it didn't matter much.

Recognition of the Mazinke rink as easily the best was given by the Canadian Curling Reporters, who named Mazinke and third Billy Martin to the all-star team along with second Dave Romkey of New Brunswick and lead Neil Green of Ontario.

Victory gave Saskatchewan possession of the Macdonald's Brier tankard for the first time since Ernie Richardson of Regina won in 1963. It also gave Saskatchewan a chance to win the world championship before home fans March 19-24.

The competition ended in disaster for Manitoba, whose representatives have won the event in each of the last three years. Fink was favored after four early victories but the rink faded noticeably after dropping a 14-end, 7-5, decision to Saskatchewan on the pivotal third day of the competition.

On Growing the Beard: It's Not All That Easy

The real problem in growing a beard is not, as you might think, the initial seven-day itch though that is, Lord knows, a fearsome thing. The real problem is the abuse a man must endure from friends, loved ones and, often, perfect strangers.

I've encountered nothing so vulnerable to the generation gap, for example. Any growing boy may grow a beard for any reason, to hide a weak chin or a mottled, post-puberty complexion or simply to add to his years. Nobody questions his motives. But let a — how shall I say? — a more mature man embark on that venture and he's fair game for everyone. It's just naturally assumed that his cultivation of a beard is a sign of vanity or posturing or the manifestation of some kind of identity crisis.

The simple, honest truth is that I am growing this beard because of a week's vacation in which I felt no compelling need to shave, there being no prying eyes but my wife's. True, she remarked, on Day Five, that I was beginning to look like a summer cottage mattress, but made no other overtly discouraging remark.

It was an exercise that led naturally to some long thoughts about shaving in general. Having worked it out, I was astonished to find that a man who shaves regularly for 50 years will have spent a grand total of 125 days — 125 days! — scraping the stubble from his face. That alone would be rationale enough for a man to let it grow. So I did.

Back at the office, however, it became more a matter of defiance. In the face of the city editor's snide remark that I looked like a bum getting over a three-months' drunk and his suggestion that I keep a half-emptied bottle of cheap Logana on my desk to complete the picture, I'd no alternative but to tough it out, itch or not.

It was the managing editor, himself, who wondered if I was going through some kind of identity crisis. While this was certainly not my reason for growing a beard, I had to admit, it may well be the result of it.

Only last night, removing a TV dinner from the oven (and, come to think of it, did my wife choose this particular time to visit her Vancouver pal because of this hair?) I felt suddenly that I was in charge of the torpedo tube of a nuclear submarine, a fantasy that lasted no more than 30 seconds but may possibly be linked to this unaccustomed growth.

Still, even smooth-shaven, I have had these moments all my life and I daresay they come to most men. Some mornings, especially when it's raining, I find that when I'm fiddling with the choke and windshield swipe buttons they become the controls of a giant 747 and I am taking off for Bora-Bora. Will a beard make me even more vulnerable to such vapors of the mind? I wish I knew.

As for vanity or posturing I can say, in all honesty, that they do not figure in it. Whatever we do with ourselves, with our clothes or our hair or anything else, is really a form of image-making, one way or another. The most casually-dressed, denim-clad man is as guilty of it as the immaculate fashion-plate. It is only when you suddenly, dramatically switch images that you draw attention to it. And beard-growing, you may take it from me, is the attention-getter to end all attention-getters.

One reason for this is that a beard does not happen overnight. Oh, my, no. It is a slow, agonizing process in which the physical appearance induces reactions ranging from mild distaste to outright loathing, rather like the symptoms of Chinese Rot.

The beard-grower requires enormous will power, facing himself in the cruel mirror each morning, to keep from the swift solution of lather and blade. One may see ahead, perhaps, the day when it will be a natty, well-manicured Van Dyke. For the moment it is only a kind of obscene fungus, as anti-social as the deliberate cultivation of weeds.

Then why, you may ask, do I persist in seeing it through to some sort of fruition? Could it possibly be that, perversely, I'm secretly enjoying all this attention, even in the form of abuse? It makes a chap wonder.

Gov't Favors Saanich Greenbelt

A proposal to establish a greenbelt system around the urban area of Saanich stands a good chance of being approved under the Land Commission Act now before the legislature.

Resource Minister Robert Williams in an interview said the greenbelt fund to be administered by the proposed land commissin would only be used to purchase land that is part of a planned greenbelt system.

"There will be no longer any scatter-gun land acquisitions," he said. "The fund will be used to establish valid greenbelts."

Asked to give an example, Williams said the Saanich proposal rejected by the Social Credit government would be a plan the land commission would give first priority for the Greater Victoria area.

Saanich submitted to the former government a proposal in May 1972 suggesting an investment of $6.2 millions to acquired 1,885 acres of greenbelt.

The greenbelt proposal calls for an extension of a green space plan which Saanich has been developing from the lower Colquitz River at Portage Inlet to the Marigold junction.

According to Williams the government's policy for the greenbelt fund will go far beyond the highway-strip concept of the former government which bought scattered pieces of property here and there along a highway.

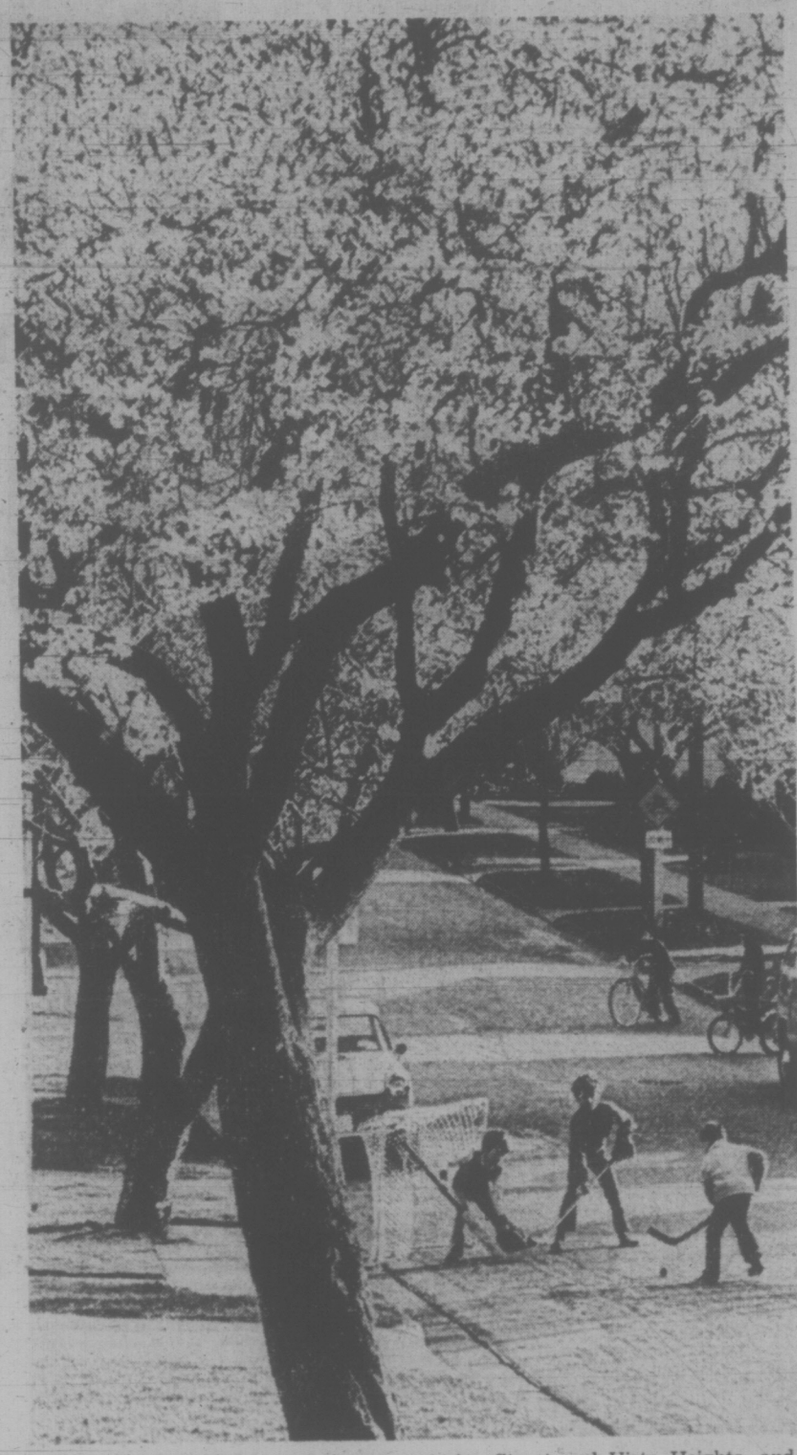
Last year the application of $25 million greenbelt fund was strongly criticized by municipalities and regional districts as it didn't provide much needed open spaces around large urban areas.

Williams said the fund has only been used to acquire property pending under the old government.

"There were two exceptions," he added. "We did acquire two areas to complete two essential projects."

He said one of these was a key parcel of land at the mouth of the Tlell River in the Queen Charlotte Islands necessary to round off a proposed provincial park.

The other was a large farm at Kettle River, east of Grand Forks and adjacent to provincial forest lands. The land was needed to establish a large game reserve.



PRUNUS PISSARDI, better known as flowering plum trees, are in full bloom on Eberts Street and around the city, heralding the arrival of spring. Japanese cherry blossoms are just beginning to pop open on Catherine Street and Vista Heights, and should be all out in 10 days. But spring flowers haven't dampened the hockey enthusiasm of (left to right) Adam Keith, Marc Keith and Chris Montgomery. (John McKay photo.)

Building Rush Strains Bylaws

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

A developer participating in Victoria's rush to build apartment blocks has found city authorities willing to stretch their own bylaws to the breaking point.

In answer to a series of calls fron angry tenants, a Times news team conducted an investigation and found these facts:

One: a major apartment development at 45 Boyd Street near the waterfront in James Bay has been more than half filled with tenants although the necessary occupancy permit has not been granted by the city. This is a contravention of the city building bylaw.

Two: self-contained studio suites within larger suites are not equipped with two cubic feet of cooled food storage space, in contravention of the city's rental accommodation bylaw.

Three: although tenants were first installed in the building Jan. 22, janitorial and garbage service started only in March, a contravention of the same bylaw.

The investigation also found that the above contraventions were part of a larger pattern of landlord-tenant problems at the new apartment building.

Tenants also complain that they are being required to pay full rent for their apartments even though promised services at the building have not been, or are not being delivered. A sauna bath, billed as a luxury extra in advertisements for the building, has not been installed.

Blacktopped parking space at the rear of the building, accessible only by a narrow lane called Lewis Street, was late being completed, as was the building's intercom system for the front door. An elevator has not been installed.

Investigation Underway

The city's engineering department, charged with overseeing the construction and maintenance of such apartment buildings, is currently investigating reports that the self-contained studio suites within larger suites are being rented out separately from the suite they are included in.

A. J. James, chief city building inspector, showed a Times reporter Thursday a pink form which he said was the occupancy permit for the 63 apartments at 45 Boyd Street, 36 of which are already rented out, plus an extra two tenants in self-contained studios.

James said the occupancy permit had not yet been granted. He explained that such permits could be waived "on a technicality" because an inspector required completion of minor items.

He admitted that it is illegal for an apartment building to be occupied without first being granted an occupancy permit.

Bill Jorgensen, deputy city engineer, said an occupancy permit for an apartment building might not be granted "because of a detail." He cited as an example the possibility that crystal chandeliers, included in plans for the building, might be missing because of late delivery.

He said an occupancy permit calls for inspections of a building by building, electricity, plumbing and fire department officials.

Tenants Warned: Owner

Albert B. Bekes, president of Chez Marc el Enterprises Ltd., and owner of The Albion at 45 Boyd, said there could be no complaints about his building "because it's not finished."

He claimed that "anybody who moved in" was warned the building was not completed and might face delays in completion.

He also said, in an interview today, that he was under financial pressure to get the building occupied. The mortgage company, which he named as Cumberland Mortgage Corporation Ltd. of Vancouver, required 85 per cent occupancy and completion of the building before they would release money on the project.

(Dennis Matson of Cumberland Mortgage said in a telephone interview from Vancouver that he knew Albert Bekes. He said he would not confirm what Bekes said.)

Bekes said he did not yet know how much the building had cost. He said it might be between $600,000 and $700,000.

He said 15 to 20 apartments had been occupied.

"This building is my pension plan," Bekes said.

Bekes said "lots of inspections" had been made at 45 Boyd Street. He said he did not know he did not have an occupancy permit.

Kit Oakley, a tenant at the apartment building, said she took occupancy on Jan. 22 with instructions to refer people seeking accommodation to Bekes. She said she understood she was engaged as an assistant "renter", helping the landlord engage tenants. She said she had done such work many times before.

Miss Oakley said tenants were not warned the building might not be completed for some time. She said they were assured the building would be finished by March 1.

She told The Times she was dissatisfied with the situation at the building because she did not intend to "be a patsy for anybody."

A planning department official said the number of apartments in Victoria has nearly doubled since 1966. In that year there were 9,625 units. By this year there were 7,925 more. He said apartments form 62 per cent of dwelling units in Victoria.

RENTAL PROBES PLANNED

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Jim Nelson, director of the Victoria Rental Aid Service, says he will start a private agency to investigate complaints of tenants against landlords because the city-supported Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau refuses to do the job.

Nelson says the agency will be called the Rental Investigation Board and will consist of himself and two other persons not yet identified.

He charged that the Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau will "only give advice" and refuses to investigate complaints.

He said the Bureau is not fulfilling the section of the bylaw which established it last November which gives the bureau the responsibility "to receive and investigate complaints of conduct in contravention of legislation governing tenancies."

NO SATISFACTION

Nelson claims the rental aid service has received "many, many" complaints from tenants who have not received satisfaction from the bureau.

"I want to know where that $12,000 is going," Nelson said referring to the amount allocated by council for operation of the bureau during its first year.

"I also want to know why Woods (John Woods, a member of the bureau) will not help these people when their landlords have broken the law," Nelson said.

Nelson said his board will follow up tenant complaints to the point of initiating prosecutions.

'NOT FAIR'

Woods, who mans the bureau's office, said he did not feel Nelson's judgment was fair.

"I would be very interested if he could substantiate that" there are people being turned away by the bureau.

Woods said he felt the bureau is complying with the terms of reference under which it was set up.

The bureau is made up of Brian Tobin, editor of the Times; Margaret Richards, a housewife and twice-defeated aldermanic candidate; Wes Dickie of the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association; and Woods who is retired and teaches apartment management at Camosun College.

Nelson is an unemployed equipment operator who started the rental aid service in 1971 with the help of "incentive payments" from welfare. His private agency places low-income people in low-cost housing at no charge to his clients.

REGIONAL CLINIC FORESEEN

A community health centre in the Colwood-Langford area may be one of the health facilities provided if the Capital Region Hospital Board's $22.5 million hospital referendum set for March 31 gets voter approval, Board Chairman Art Young said today.

At a press conference this morning, after signing the bylaw authorizing the expenditure, Health Minister Dennis Cocke urged all voters in the Capital Region to support the referendum, and said he has asked the board to be as "flexible as possible" in how it spends the money.

Cocke said the delivery of health care is in such a state of flux that no one can predict how services will be provided one year from now, let alone in 10 years' time. For that reason he has suggested the board look at "innovative ideas" such as the provision of community health centres.

Esquimalt NDP MLA Jim Gorst welcomed Young's suggestion that the Colwood-Langford area is a likely location for such a centre. Gorst commented that the facility could be invaluable in serving the needs of the rapidly growing area, with a population including large numbers of young and elderly people.

Cocke said he didn't want electors to think they were being asked to approve the spending entirely from taxes on property. He pointed out the provincial government is providing 60 per cent of that sum.

Young noted the maximum amount local taxpayers will have to pay is about $10 million, which over the total six-year borrowing period would work out to about one mill for the average taxpayer in the district.

"Everyone who knows anything about health in this area is convinced we need this money. If we were going for the whole bundle it would be closer to $40 million," he said.

Young said although the board will keep an open mind on expenditure allocations, the major part will be earmarked for acute care needs — with a priority item being the renovation of "obsolete" facilities at the Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospitals.

"We are behind sadly in many respects. We are getting first-class care in probably third-class facilities. It's an absolute must that those facilities be upgraded," he added.

Disputed Course Discussed

A special meeting has been called this afternoon by the department of education to discuss a Political Science 12 course proposed for Oak Bay senior secondary and rejected by the department.

Oak Bay principal David Voth, school board chairman Peter Bunn and district superintendent A. J. Longmore have been asked to meet with department officials to discuss the controversial course which was approved by the school board two years ago.

The course was rejected by the department at that time and again rejected when the board re-submitted it last month.

J. R. Meredith, the government's superintendent of instructional services, said the meeting was called " to discuss our concerns and their concerns."

He said the department was "most concerned" that young people learn about political thought and the political system in Canada.

He stressed that the decision to reject the locally developed course was made on the advice of the 12-man Provincial Advisory Committee on Secondary School Curriculum, made up of teachers, trustees and other educators.

Meredith said he had spoken to Education Minister Eileen Dailly on the matter and would make a recommendation to her following this afternoon's meeting.

The political science course, drawn up by Oak Bay high, is a study of political thought throughout history.

Victor Sees Logical Growth

McCREADIE
. . . elected

Accountant and offfice manager for Victoria Paving Ltd., McCreadie was making his first bid for public office.

"I feel Esquimalt is growing along the most logical avenue," he said. "It's being developed and it's being controlled by the present council in an excellent manner."

Lundgren, of 635 Admirals, a 29-year-old machinist at HMC Dockyard, received 569 votes to McCreadie's 597.

Mrs. Ada Barnes, 66, of 1137 Bewdley, a housewife and secretary-treasurer of the Esquimalt Chamber of Commerce, received 198 votes.

McCreadie, who lives with his wife and three children at 766 Hutchinson, is active in minor sports and is treasurer of the Esquimalt Minor Lacrosse Association.

Voter turnout was 28.8 per cent, compared with 41 per cent in the 1968 byelection when the late Ald. Art Cuthbert was first elected.

Merz said 1,368 ballots were cast, three of which were rejected.

Ellis Enters Civic Race

Bob Ellis, 37-year-old credit bureau manager, confirmed today he will run for city council.

A byelection to fill the aldermanic seat left vacant by the sudden death of Ove Witt has been set for March 31. Malcolm Anderson and Margaret Richards have already declared themselves in the race. All three have run for council before.

Luxury Hotel Short-Lived

elizabeth forbes

Oak Bay Council's first newsletter of 1973 was recently delivered to residents in the municipality. And among many interesting items in it is a short piece about the old Hotel Mount Baker, opened in 1893 and destroyed by fire in 1902.

Site of the place is given as "on the waterfront across from the present Oak Bay Marina", and, an old-time picture accompanying the story substantiates that fact.

In the forground is a rock outcropping. The same rock that you see today at the Beach Drive entrance to the marina.

The newsletter tells us that when it became known that royalty would stay at the hotel for two days, prominent Victorians insisted on loaning pictures, tapestries, bric-a-brac and furniture to create a suitable and gracious setting.

After reading that bit of information I went rummaging through my files to see if I had anything more on the hotel.

And I discovered that newspapers of the day printed names of some of those who loaned treasures for the occasion.

China was specially imported for the visit by Weiler Bros., David Spencer cabled a special order to Belfast for the bed and table linen. Forrest Angus and Miss Pemberton loaned pictures for the drawingroom; Mrs. Gus Leiser, the gold and silk furniture and Mrs. M. Lenz, a Chestershire lounge, statuary, ornaments, pictures, cut glass and silverware.

A Mrs. McNeill offered two valuable pictures and other Victorians contributed flowers, plants, and numerous object d'art.

Sir Wilfred Laurier, then Prime Minister of Canada, who travelled with the royal party, also stayed at the Mount Baker.

Tents were put up in front of the hotel for a guard of Royal Marines from the warship in which the royal couple travelled. In what was a park at the rear of the hotel in those days, barracks were erected for the Mounted Police and stables for horses which drew the royal carriage through the streets of Victoria.

Hotel Mount Baker first opened its doors to guests on May 24, 1893, and on June 8, the same year there was a grand opening ball.

Arrangements for that ball were made by a group of popular young men of the day, including H. D. Helmcken, J. Stuart Yates, R. Jones, W. H. Langley, Allan Cameron, Arthur K. Smith and H. R. Haines, with Hon. D. W. Higgins, the chairman.

J. Alexander Virtue was manager and he and his wife hosted many gay times at this attractive hotel by the sea, including summer evening band concerts on the wide verandah.

However, the glory of the Mount Baker was to be short-lived. At 6:30 a.m., on September 4, 1902, fire broke out and within two hours, all that was left was a network of twisted pipes and grim rows of scorched and blackened brick pillars.

Mount Baker Hotel opened in 1893, razed in 1902

There were only 23 guests at the time. All escaped. Among them Hon. Robert Harper, then Speaker of the Australian parliament, his wife and son.

Today, on the same site, you'll find a modern apartment block. And all that remains of the old hotel is the granite pillars of a north gateway, still standing in their original position.

Next time you drive around that way, take a look at those pillars. Admire the craftsmanship.

In those days, gates like that were built to last.

Seabed Weeds Most Welcome in Flower Bed

it's our environment

By THE ENVIRONMENT CENTRE Of Greater Victoria

QUESTION: Do you know if Alginure is produced by an environmentally "clean" process? Where is it grown or collected? — Stephen D. Willerton.

ANSWER: The makers of Alginure, a liquid seaweed fertilizer-soil conditioner produced in Sidney, assures us that the product is, indeed, natural and organic. From seaweed gathered locally, it is produced through a patented process involving cold electrolysis — no heat is used. We're told the Sidney firm has only local license for commercial seaweed gathering.

Seaweed — especially the giant kelp which are forms of algae — is high quality fertilizers and have some other interesting properties, as well. We're told, for instance, that the Alginure process was developed during the Second World War for making allied aircraft invisible to German radar. After the war the fertilizing and soil conditioning properties of the material was learned.

Of course, you can gather your own seaweed to use in your garden or compost pile — it's most plentiful on beaches after the first storms in fall.

In nutrient content, seaweed is similar to barnyard manure although it contains about half as much phosphorus and twice as much potassium. It also contains valuable trace minerals such as boron, cobalt, copper, iron, manganese, molybdenum, and zinc. The algin or algenic acid which serves to make the plants flexible in the restless sea, stimulates the growth of soil bacteria. Thus seaweed breaks down very rapidly in the garden to form rich humus. Further, it has the ability to break up heavy clay thus improving the important "tilth" of the soil—this is one of the selling points of the product Alginure.

Some gardeners make their own "kelp tea" by chopping giant kelp into a barrel of water and allowing it to decompose there. After the kelp liquifies, buckets of the smelly liquid are drawn off and used as fertilizer.

Two weeks ago, we suggested ways to recycle waste fats at home. In response to that column, a reader has offered some refinements in the art of making soap at home. It's not as difficult as it might seem.

QUESTION: I have made my own soap for years using the recipe on the label of the lye tin. However, I find a recipe printed in The Times a year ago is better. Why don't you reprint this? Also, I thought you might like to know how I clean fats for soap-making. I keep both a four-pound and a one-pound tin in my fridge. When the small tin is full of drippings, I boil it up with some water in a large pan and let it set overnight. Then, I take the cold fat off the top and put it in the large tin. When the large tin is full of cleaned fat, I make soap. — Mrs. J. Jubb, 467 Davida Ave.

ANSWER: Thanks for the information. And here, for the benifit of others, is that recipe for bar soap:

1 can lye
2½ pints cold water
4 pounds clean fat
3 tablespoons laundry borax
2 tablespoons white sugar
½ cup warm water

Put cold water into a large glass jar and pour lye in carefully, stirring with a wooden spoon until dissolved. Don't let the lye splash on you or anything else. Wear glasses or goggles to protect your eyes. It might be a good idea to mix it in garage or basement.

To lye and water add the mixture of borax, sugar and warm water. Stir very well. Let it cool until the bottle feels cool to the hand.

While the lye is cooling, melt the fat and pour it into a crock or enamel pail. When the fat is lukewarm, pour lye mixture slowly into the fat stirring constantly. When the lye is poured in, stir for one or two minutes and then pour into an old enamel flat pan or a wooden box lined with plastic. Next day, cut it into bars.

If the soap separates, return it to an enamel pot, crumble it up, add three pints of water and simmer it on the stove until it is "fixed." Then pour it out into the flat pan again.

Mrs. Jubb tells us she uses this soap, cut up, in her automatic washer. "It really foams up," she said.

Good Record Sticks

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for nearly 20 years to a man I love very much. He doesn't drink or smoke and has a nearly perfect church attendance record. He has shown me he loves me in a million different ways and I've never had reason to doubt him.

Perhaps I should tell you that all the bills are sent to the house and I pay them by cheque. For Christmas he gave me several gifts. Among them was a pair of lovely earrings. After the bills came in for the Christmas buying, I noticed two pair of earrings on the bill, priced exactly the same. Thinking there must be a mistake in the billing, I phoned the store and was told it was no mistake. Two pair of identical earrings were purchased by my husband. That evening I asked him about it and he said he had given the other pair to an old lady who works with him.

Yesterday he phoned from work to say he had broken his glasses, and would I bring him his extra pair, so I did. In his office I saw the "old lady" wearing the same earrings he had given to me. Only she wasn't old — she was young, and very pretty. I was sick.

That night I told my husband what I had observed and he said he didn't tell me she was young and pretty because he didn't want to "upset" me.

Well, I am more upset knowing he lied to me. Abby, can a wife ever trust her husband after something like this? —Heartsick.

DEAR HEARTSICK: Yes. Nothing erodes a relationship faster than living with suspicion. No credit to your husband for having lied to you in the first place, but if he had something more serious to hide he certainly wouldn't have charged both sets of earrings, knowing the bill would be sent home and handled by you. Judging from his track record, I'd say your husband deserves to be trusted.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the proud parents of a beautiful five-day-old baby girl. After seven years of a childless marriage we were able to adopt this precious angel, and words can't express our joy and gratitude.

So what's our problem? Stupid people who say, "Well, now that you've adopted a child, maybe, like so many other couples, you will have YOUR OWN." (What do they think we are? Babysitters?)

Another remark that really bugs us is, "Do you know who her REAL parents are?" We consider that nobody's business but our own, but how do we answer it? —Mixed Emotions.

DEAR MIXED: Reply, "Yes, we know who her REAL parents are. WE are!"

DEAR ABBY: I have been keeping steady company with a young man for the past two years. I am 22 and Bill is 25. He told me that he is going to give me an engagement ring. I was thrilled because Bill is the most wonderful person I have ever known.

He said he is having the ring made special. It will have a large (one carat) round diamond in the center, surrounded by several smaller diamonds. Then he told me that he hoped I would agree to the one condition he was putting on the ring. It was if something happened to our marriage (I suppose he meant if it ended in divorce), he could have that center diamond back because it was his mother's. (His mother died when he was 10 and before his father died last year he gave Bill the diamond.)

Abby, why would the thought of divorce even enter his mind at a time like this? Now I wonder if I should accept it. Somehow I would feel that the ring wasn't really mine. Please help me sort out my thinking. —Troubled

DEAR TROUBLED: The diamond is an heirloom, and he wants to keep it in the family. Bill is a very far-sighted young man. Don't fault him for that. Accept it, and wear it with pride.

Understandably, when your first child arrives, you and your husband are eager to bring him up correctly without spoiling him.

The 12-page booket You and Your Baby is an excellent childcare book which offers expert advice how to handle your infant during those vital first months. You will find some separate advice for mothers and for fathers; but most hints are meant for both.

The booklet stresses that a baby can never receive too much affection, but that too little love can ruin him for life. It is bad for him to think that by screaming he can get whatever he wants. This is why you should learn when it is all right to let him cry and when it is wiser to pick him up and fondle him.

It is important for both parents to have the same basic attitude towards their infant. Even a baby of a few months can sense which parent is more indulgent and will take advantage.

One chapter discusses some of the games babies play. One is called dropping-and-asking back. If your little one adores this particular pastime, you can easily outwit him. Simply tie his toys on a string or let him play on the floor.

The booklet brims with other common sense advice which you will want to know.

'Liberal Sprinkle of Freedom and Open-Air'

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A complete open-area school, combining all secondary grades in a flexible learning atmosphere, should be built in Victoria according to S. J. Willis junior secondary principal Horace Dawson.

A native Victorian with 42 years teaching experience, including 27 as school principal, Dawson still talks eagerly of progressive new ideas in education.

In his own school, 160 Grade 9 and 10 students participate in an open-area program which is open in its physical setting as well as its style of learning.

Students sit in groups within a large area and work more on their own or on an individual basis with teachers.

These students, he says, are "more flexible, more adaptable, more thoughtful, more independent" than students in a regular classroom setting.

"It's not necessarily best for everybody," Dawson admits, "no education process is good for everyone on a mass scale. We need approaches although I'm reluctant to agree that many kids need a regimented program for 12 years."

A regimented program, he feels, produces adults who are unfeeling about the need of themselves and other people, who can't depend on their own resources and who are unable to make vital decisions.

"I think we should have an open-area school built in the city, open to anyone in the district who has finished elementary school, starting with about 200 or 300 kids," Dawson says.

An open-area school could function, he says, with the same curriculum used now if principals and teachers were given a "liberal sprinkling of freedom."

Dawson would want students to learn about their environment, meaning he would allow them to go out and do things in the community and even work at home with his parents sometimes "to truly make home and community a greater part of the learning environment."

In his own open-area classes, students are allowed to come and go more freely if they have a "contract" with their teacher.

A pile of "contracts" sitting on Dawson's desk showed students who had signed out to spend an afternoon or morning at places like the university, the public library and the Pollution Control Branch, to do extra research.

All letter grades would be abolished in Dawson's open system with students judged "in terms of sensible expectation for the individual."

Evaluation should be for two purposes, he says, first to decide where the student is in relation to himself and secondly, if he's below where he should be, to find out how to encourage him.

"Of course that's not how the public view evaluation," Dawson said. "They see it as things like separating the men from the boys."

None of these things can happen, Dawson admits, until the student-teacher ratio in schools is vastly improved.

"As it is now," he says, "we still have to have physical and mental regimentation because of the number of teachers."

"Education comes from the word which means "to lead out," he says.

"Telling isn't teaching and telling isn't learning, teaching should mean to bring out what's inside the human organism."

Lack of trust is the main problem in our education system, according to Dawson, and fear is what moves the system.

Everybody in the system is afraid of everybody else and so nobody is honest about what they think should be done or what they feel, he said.

Double Menu Not Necessary When Family Member Diets

Beauty Improvement Plan

BY Josephine Lowman

This is the eleventh in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of Why Grow Old? and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.

Friend: "What's the matter, Bill? You look terrible!".

Bill: "My wife's on a reducing diet."

This has happened but need not. At first it may be dificult for a woman to think of, much less look at the rich foods she likes but cannot have. Later when she loses some of her interest in food, without realizing it, she may allow this to affect her planning for the family. Also, if she does not provide her body with the essential nutrients, she is almost sure to become irritable and hard to live with.

I think many women put off reducing because they think it will be necessary to plan two sets of meals, one for the family and one for themselves. This is enough to discourage anyone, but it just is not so. A good reducing diet should have variety and include foods from the four food groups. Such menus can be the basis for the family meals. I have just printed reducing menus for nine days. I think you will find that the evening meals can serve for the family too, with a few additions or changes.

The following are some suggestions which will allow you to use just one grocery list. In the first place you can have smaller servings and no seconds while the others can have more of everything. You can substitute consomme or chicken or beef broth for gravy and bake your potato instead of creaming or frying it. You can broil your meat patties and fry theirs.

You can remove the skin from your portion of chicken, and also the visible fat from meat, substitute waterpacked fruits or fresh fruit for dessert, and skim milk or powdered, fat-free milk for whole milk. For yourself have some low-calorie salad drressings on hand and eat only clear soups. Remove your portion of vegetables from the pot before seasoning them for the family. Bake their apples with butter and a marshmallow on top and eat yours raw.

This many sound grim but it need not be dull and tasteless if you discover the wonderful world of herbs. Herbs and wine and lemon juice can be used with delicious results. Chopped dill or chives or parsley add considerable flavor and eye appeal to broths, proached or baked eggs, baked or steamed fish, salad, cheese sandwiches, stews or vegetables. Onions and garlic can be used to great advantage if you like them. Lemon juice is great on broccoli.

Small amounts of wine or sherry will spruce up soups or fruit compotes. Bake fish in white wine and you will not miss the rich sauce. The sweeter spices like nutmeg, cinnamon or powdered ginger can also be used for the dieter's delight. A wedge of cantaloupe sprinkled with powdered ginger is an exotic treat while plain yogurt topped with nutmeg or cinnamon has only around 125 calories. The fruit-flavored yogurts have 260 calories.

A further trick which will make dieting pleasant is a simple sauce that is popular in some parts of the southwest Asian countries. This is used as a dip for pieces of cooked meat and wedges and strips of vegetables. The basic sauce consists of equal parts of soy sauce and fresh lime juice. Lemon juice may be substituted for the lime juice. Only small amounts are necessary, about two tablespoons to a person.

Into this basic sauce you add one of any number of possible ingredients which would compliment your meal—smashed fresh girlic, (one clove to two tablespoons of sauce), finely minced fresh ginger root (this can be purchased in Asian or South American food shops), small chili peppers, red pepper flakes or horseradish.

This sauce is equally good when sprinkled on top of steamed rice, meat or vegetables. You can vary the soy-lime sauce in many other ways by adding your creative touches in the development of low-calorie tricks to make low-calorie eating a treat.

This is the fourth week of my eight week Beauty Improvement Plan. Those who started at the beginning of Bip are well launched on their exciting eight weeks aimed at becoming lovlier before Easter. If any of the rest of you would like to follow this course, you can begin your eight weeks now. The portion of the series you missed is available in my Bip Kit. If you would like to have this, send 50 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope to Josephine Lowman in care of The Times, 2631 Douglas Street, Victoria.

Next week: Don't be discouraged when weight loss is at standstill, and, tricks in reducing.

Arithmetic Tune Catchy Number

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's wonders is that many kids who quickly memorize the mumbled words of rock songs seem to draw blanks in recalling simple multiplication tables.

This phenomenon has led to the creation of Multiplication Rock, a children's feature that appears eight times each weekend at the end of children's shows on the ABC television network.

The principle of the series is simple: dry-as-dust multiplication tables are written as catchy lyrics to pop music. Cartoons illustrate the number involved.

All of it is the brainchild of David MacCall, president of a New York advertising agency.

It came about in 1968 when he was musing about his young son's woes with multiplication.

"It seemed strange that he knew the words to every rock song ever witten, but didn't know his multiplication tables," said McCall, who readily admits he was the flunking kind of math student in his school days.

McCall said he was only thinking at that time of making a "rock-'n'-roll" multiplication album for remedial use in elementary schools.

He contacted Bobby Dorough, a New York composer and pianist who previously had written commercial jingles for him. Dorough sketched out and recorded two sample songs.

Then McCall got the Bank Street School of Education here to try out the songs in four inner-city and four suburban schools. He said Bank Street officials later told him the songs had a wider application than he first imagined.

Tom Yohe, the art director at McCall's agency, recommended turning the whole idea into a children's television series. The proposal was taken to ABC, a client of McCall's.

The network quickly bought the idea. Dorough went back to the piano and turned out 11 three-minute songs with such titles as My Hero Zero, Four Legged Zoo and Figure Eight.

"We didn't include the numbers 1 and 10 because they're too easy," said McCall. "But each song we did — they go up to the number 12 — had a different beat, a different sound to it."

The premiere scng was called Three Is a Magic Number. The lyrics weren't exactly out of the Carly Simon songbag, but they got the job done.

It was a complicated, syncopated song that still managed to swing.

Blossom Dearie, a fine singer with a soft little-girl voice, sant one of the songs. Grady Tate, a jazz-drummer-turned-vocalist, did two others. Dorough sang the rest.

The series had its premiere Jan. 6 and has been on the air ever since, six times on Saturday mornings and twice on Sundays.

Could the idea behind Multiplication Rock be applied to higher forms of math, such as calculus?

"One would be hesitant to say so," said Dorough. "I'd probably have to go back to school."

'Kids Need Help' To Be Parents

VANCOUVER (CP) — A provincial government health consultant said Saturday one of the most effective methods of fighting child abuse would be to teach children how to be good parents.

Dr. Sidney Segal, speaking at a meeting of the North Pacific Pediatric Society said such a program in schools would ease the tensions of later family life.

BABIES BAKED LIKE A CAKE

LONDON (AP) — Despite increasing sex education in schools, many British children still believe they entered this life via a gooseberry bush, a car park or a stove, an educationist said today.

Some teen-agers are not much wiser.

One little girl aged 11 said she had been baked like a cake in the stove.

She was quoted as saying that if babies were left in the stove too long they became black.

Others said they had been brought in doctors' bags, bought in stores, found in car parks or arrived with the laundry.

One little girl though the birds and bees were responsible and said if a bee stung you, you became pregnant.

Kenner, the mother of two teen-age daughters, said she interviewed more than 1,200 children and almost 6,000 teen-agers during 12 years of counseling in schools, and "these opinions are not just those of the younger children."

Strangled in Tub

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — An American woman missionary was found strangled in her bathtub in the south Taiwan city of Taiwan, police reported today.

Gladys Hopewell, 58, had lived on Taiwan 18 years.

Police said her body was discovered by a student and Miss Hopewell's maid Sunday night after they had broken into her locked, darkened house.

Nothing was reported stolen.

Police said they were looking for the maid's husband to question him.

Modern Poetry To Be Read

Twentieth Century Poetry and Poetics is the title of a poetry reading to be given Thursday at 4:15 p.m. in Room 163 of the University of Victoria Cornet Building.

The reader is Gary Geddes, a lecturer in the English Department.

Books published by Geddes include Fifteen Canadian Poets, edited by him and a book of poetry, Rivers Inlet. A second book, Snakeroot, will shortly come off the press.

The reading is available to anyone interested.

Moon Buggy Back on Job

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Union's remote-controlled moon buggy, Lunokhod 2, has begun a two-week program of explorations in and around a lunar crater formed more than 3.5 billion years ago.

Lunokhod landed on the moon in mid-January, was switched on again Saturday after being parked during the bitterly cold lunar night. Days and nights on the moon last the equivalent of a fortnight on earth.

Tass said the buggy recharged its batteries and then covered more than 30 yards Sunday, taking television pictures as it moved.

Lunokhod is now poised on the rim of a crater more than a mile wide and will spend the rest of the lunar day making a thorough study of it.

Abducted Singer Escapes Captor

Miss Small, 20, who played Tevye's third daughter in the movie version of Fiddler on the Roof, escaped after one of the robbers drove off with her, using her own car.

The kidnapping was disclosed when police found Miss Small's car and raided an apartment Saturday to seize all three suspects.

Police said the actress had stopped in a service station last Wednesday to buy gasoline en route to a nightclub singing engagement in Brooklyn.

She went to an outdoor phone booth to make a call when three youths drove into the station and, armed with a pistol and a sawed-off shotgun, held up two attendants and took $100.

SAP SEASON COMES EARLY

Rymond Stainton of nearby Boston Ont. says it is the earliest sap season he can remember.

He said if there is no overnight frost the sap may not return to the root system, which could result in short supplies of maple syrup.

Alias Intrigues Alta. Judge

EDMONTON — Joe Cool of Camrose, Alta., made an appearance in provincial court here Saturday, much to the amazement of Judge J. C. Coughlan.

Cool, the alias of Leonard Sadoway, 19, was charged with robbery with violence following a purse snatching Friday. The judge was intrigued by the alias and asked to hear more about it.

"Well, when I was a little guy," said Sadoway, his head barely clearing the top of the prisoner's box, "That's what my friends called me."

"What do you want me to call you?" smiled the judge.

WELLAND, Ont. — The governments of Canada and the United States should consider requiring their citizens to vote, consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Sunday night.

The average American worker spends from January to May just earning money to pay government taxes but he will not spend even one day to make sure the government spends his tax dollars wisely, Nader said.

It is not the active citizens who should be regarded as freaks but the citizens who do not get involved, Nader said. Speaking out for the sake of trying to effect change is "patriotism in its ultimate sense."

PARIS — A 71-year-old Gaullist veteran and his 39-year-old Socialist son will be on opposing sides in the new French National Assembly elected Sunday.

There have been several cases in the assembly of father-and-son teams, but the presence on opposite benches of former minister Louis Joxe and his son Pierre is believed to be unprecedented.

EDMONTON — A 46-year-old maintenance mechanic from Mississauga, Ont., who won the $100,000 first prize in the Manitoba Golden Sweepstakes based on the Canadian curling championship, said Saturday he doesn't need money to be happy.

Mauritz Rosendahl, who came to Canada six years ago from Holland, appeared calm and unflappable as he watched the last draw of the championship at the Edmonton Gardens. He held the winning ticket on the Harvey Mazinke rink of Saskatchewan that clinched the title Friday night.

"For me, it's all the same," Rosendahl said as he watched his first curling match. "There's not that much difference between having money and not having money.

ROME — Mario Sellirini dived into the Tiber to escape a policeman who caught him trying to rob a car Sunday. The policeman jumped in after him, just in time to save his life.

Saanich Discussing '73 Budget

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis will sit in for Ald. Leslie Passmore during preliminary municipal budget discussions starting the last week of March.

Passmore, recuperating at home after hospital treatment for a heart attack suffered Feb. 25, is chairman of council's finance committee with responsibility for preliminary budget-trimming.

The mayor said the first round of budget sessions could be organized to accommodate Passmore, who expeeted to be away from council responsibilities for about a month.

Curtis said he agreed Passmore should stay away for a proper rest: "He is the most conscientious, hardworking alderman I have encountered anywhere."

Engineering Feats To Be Recognized

The Engineering Institute of Canada and the federal government are co-operating on a project to locate and commemerate outstanding achievements by engineers across Canada.

The program is to be known as the Canadian Engineering Heritage Record, says L. Austin Wright of 670 Dallas, former general secretary of the institute.

He is also convenor of a committee established by the institute's Victoria branch to take on the task for Vancouver Island. There are 45 branches across the country working on the project.

Wright said the institute would like the help of the public in suggesting worthy engineering achievements to be officially recongized and anyone with ideas is asked to contact L. D. Perkins, the Victoria branch secretary, at 910 Richmond Ave. or by phoning 598-2984.

The institute will turn relevant records over to the department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development which has responsibility for commemoration of persons, places, events and objects of national historic importance.

TIME LOSS A RECORD

Work stoppages across the country last year resulted in the loss of 7,848,360 man days, the federal labor department reported today.

The 532 strikes and lockouts involved 690,667 workers.

The time loss for 1972 was the highest ever recorded, the department said.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Methadone Gets a Boost

In the Journal of the AMA, in an article by that expert on the treatment of heroin addicts, Dr. Vincent Dole, of the Rockefeller Institute, I read that jails do not serve the purpose of removing a significant fraction of the addicts from the streets.

As Dr. Dole says, "If all the space in all the jails in New York City were used for the confinement of addicts, 90 per cent of the city's heroin users would still remain in the county."

Also I read that during the last nine months, more than 22,000 heroin addicts have been successfully detoxified in the jails of New York City. These addicts have been treated with methadone — the drug which takes away an addict's desire for heroin.

What bothers me is that today so many people want laws that would make it illegal for a physician like me to give even one dose of methadone to an addict who wants help in "kicking his habit."

Many people growl about methadone because they say that all it does is to shift a person from one addictive drug to another.

But such people ignore the fact that on heroin, a man or woman is likely to resort to criminal activities in order to get the large amounts of money each day that are necessary to purchase the drug.

Recently, I have been cheered to read that another drug like methadone, but perhaps non-addictive and longer-acting, has been found.

TERRIFIC VALUE!

Designed by Sam Maclure, one of the best architects of his time, built in 1912 for a wealthy client who spared no expense; this quality home has more charm, and certainly far better materials, than any modern home at higher prices. Just right for those who like to entertain and have a large family. Set on a beautifully landscaped treed, secluded acre. The huge drawing room has bay windows overlooking the garden and an Adams fireplace. The large dining room with fireplace will hold the largest suite. Roomy modern kitchen with adjoining sunny family room. Cosy den with fireplace. Bedrooms and bathrooms galore. Garden playhouse and pool. But words cannot describe the charm of design. All this for only $98,000. Good financing available. May I show it to you?

'Festival of Cricket' Slated for Victoria

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Canada has invited Bermuda and the United States to play in a 10-day "festival of cricket" this summer.

The three national teams will compete for the Sir Henry Tucker Trophy, is Victoria, sometime in September.

Alma "Champ" Hunt, president of the Bermuda Cricket Board of Control, says the contest will become one of the most important cricket matches in North America.

This year will be the first time Canada will be competing for the trophy, fought for previously between Bermuda and the United States. Bermuda is the current holder.

Present planning has Bermuda to defend the trophy either against Canada or the United States, and the winner of that match meeting the third team.

The series is expected to be played by the three teams annually.

Sure, you can buy a cheaper mower than a Lawn-Boy. In fact, you can buy one every year. But with a Lawn-Boy you won't have to, and that means you'll be cutting your grass and expenses at the same time, every time you use it. You see, a Lawn-Boy resists the aging process. Lawn-Boy has been known to have gone on working for up to eighteen years. That's value for you.
In the years to come you'll be glad you own a Lawn-Boy for a lot of other reasons too. Like the 17 major safety features that keep Lawn-Boy the most trusted name in lawn mowers.

Compromise Sought on Car Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's Big Three automakers urged today that current auto-exhaust restrictions be tightened but the 1975 guidelines weakened.

The proposals by General Motors, Ford and Chrysler were made in statements submitted to the Environmental Protection Agency which today is beginning court-ordered hearings on the proposed 1975 regulations.

The automakers earlier sought and were denied a one-year delay in enforcement of the resrictions. They said they could not meet the stringent regulations.

The proposed compromise regulations would decrease the amount of contaminants spewed into the air under current regulations, but would not be as tough as proposed for 1975 model-year cars.

Under current regulations, cars must not emit more pollutants per mile than 39 grams of carbon monoxide, 3.4 grams of hydrocarbons and three grams of nitrogen oxides. General Motors has proposed that the hydrocarbon level be cut to two grams and the carbon monoxide cut to 25 grams. It asked that the nitrogen oxide level be left the same.

Ford suggested the hydrocarbon level be cut to 1.7 grams a mile and carbon monoxide reduced to 20 grams a mile, with the nitrogen oxide level remaining the same. Chrysler's proposal urged carbon monoxide be reduced to 24 grams a mile, hydrocarbons reduced to 1.7 and nitrogen oxide to 2.7.

The proposed 1975 standard would limit exhaust emissions to no more than 3.4 of carbon monoxide, .4 grams of hydrocarbons and 3.0 grams of nitrogen oxides. The nitrogen oxide output would be restricted to .4 grams per mile in 1976.

William Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, earlier denied Detroit's request for a one-year extension of the present standards, and the automakers sued to have the decision reversed.

The U.S. Court of Appeals last February rejected the argument by the automakers, but ordered Ruckelshaus to reconsider his decision.

Public Announcement

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters, in December 1972, distributed to its members a document prepared by the Association in conjunction with the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police entitled "A Statement of Objectives, Principles and Operating Guidelines for Effective Working Relationships between the Peace Agencies of Canada and the Media". The document came to the attention of the public and the Commission through media reports in the middle of the week of February 12, 1973.

On February 16th, the C.A.B. delivered a copy of this document to the Commission.

On the same day, the Commission addressed a message to the C.A.B. taking note of media reports of a purported agreement between private radio and television broadcasters and the country's police chiefs and asking to be advised of all details of any such agreement. The Commission's message stated that "The Commission will expect that individual broadcasters will not implement any agreement such as that referred to in the media reports until consultations with the Commission have taken place".

Subsequently, the C.A.B. requested the Commission to provide during the course of a regularly scheduled public hearing in the near future, an opportunity for discussion of the Statement.

The Commission considers that it is in the public interest to provide an opportunity for a discussion of this matter as soon as possible and will allocate time for this purpose during its Public Hearing to be held at the Skyline Hotel, Ottawa, Ont., commencing on Tuesday, April 10, 1973, at 9:30 a.m.

The subject matter of this discussion is of fundamental importance to all Canadians. The Commission will therefore welcome written submissions on issues raised by the C.A.B. Statement from all interested parties. Such submissions should be submitted by April 2, 1973 to the Secretary, CRTC, 100 Metcalfe Street, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0N2.

The Commission, in the interests of having a full airing of views, may invite individuals or groups to appear at the Public Hearing.

The Commission expects that, having regard to their responsibility under the provisions of the Broadcasting Act, licensees will not take steps to implement the Statement distributed by the C.A.B. until the matter has been discussed at the public hearing and considered further.

Thyme Will Pay Off As Big Time-Saver

There is nothing new or original in suggesting a lawn area of creeping thyme instead of conventional grass. You may have read of thyme lawns and thought of them as an excellent way to clothe impossibly gritty soils or sandy sloping banks.

Yet they have never occurred as the answer to any problem of your own.

One most successful thyme planting has been seen for 15 years just off downtown Douglas Street where a bank slopes to street level. Another planting was in a commercial garden among rocks where alpine plants were featured. The shallow topsoil over flat areas of rock outcropping successfully displayed creeping thymes.

The home gardener who cannot keep a green patch of grass or resents the time spent on watering, cutting and feeding a lawn should consider a substitute, balancing the advantages against the disadvantages of the present system.

Replacing the lawn with well selected shrubs has been suggested many times. Choose them not only for flower color but for branching habit and foliage attraction. The cost need be no more than the initial cost of putting in a good lawn.

The upkeep is mainly top-dressing with compost and one annual pruning or removal of spent flowers while the shrubs are young. Many kinds do not require even this attention.

Another advantage of shrub plantings in place of a wide lawn in front of the home is that the shrubs will form a noise barrier in a very few years.

Carefully planned, there need be no sense of being shut in, nor need the windows receive undesirable shade.

For a work-free path among the shrubs, the creeping thymes offer an unusual alternative to grass. It needs to be the right width for balance in the picture as a whole, and it will be pleasant to walk on — pungently fragrant and springy.

To keep thymes at their normal two inches height, give them a poor, thin, gritty soil and full sunshine. To provide this growing medium in most gardens it may be necessary to surface the pathway with sand after laying out its site with string and stakes. Rake just enough to mix a little of the soil with the sand.

By planting irregullar drifts of color in a path, the effect is of a muted color carpet all summer. Very little of the white is wanted, but try for a touch of the golden thyme too. Foliage color variation is sufficient to carry interest over to the other seasons.

The mats of thyme you buy are to be pulled apart into pieces each about the diameter of the old 50-cent coins (if you remember them). Each piece must have its roots.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Virtually all bridge players will agree that bridge is the most fascinating and most mentally stimulating card game ever devised. Part of the fascination comes from the parry and thrust of declarer and defender. An example can be observed in todays deal, which came up at the 1972 Summer National Championships.

East-West vulnerable. West deals.

NORTH
♡ K 2
◇ A K Q 8 4 3
♣ 3

WEST	EAST
♠ J 8 6	♠ A 3
♡ 6 3	♡ A 10 9 8 7
◇ 10 7 6	◇ J 5
♣ A Q 10 9 7	♣ J 8 6 5

SOUTH
♠ K 10 9 5
♡ Q J 5 4
◇ 9 2
♣ K 4 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ◇	1 ♡	1 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♡.

East made the first thrust for the defense when, after capturing dummy's king of hearts with his ace, he shifted to the jack of clubs. This card won the trick when everybody followed suit with low clubs. A club was then continued, and declarer ruffed the trick in dummy.

Declarer now parried East's thrust by leading a low spade off the board. East could not afford to put up his ace, for if he did, dummy would ruff East's club continuation. Declarer would then cash the queen of spades, return to his own hand via the queen of hearts to play the king of spades, and pick up West's jack. The rest of the tricks would now belong to declarer.

Accordingly, East played low on the trump lead off the board, and South's king captured the trick. Now declarer could not afford to lead a second trump, for even if he finessed against West's jack (by leading the ten and playing low from dummy), he would go down. East, upon winning with his ace, would simply play another club, forcing dummy to ruff with its last trump, the queen. West's jack of trumps would then become established as a winner.

But declarer, after taking trick four with his king of trumps, had a riposte. Instead of leading a second trump, he played a diamond to dummy's ace, after which he cashed the diamond king. Then came the queen of diamonds — and no matter what East played, declarer was home free.

If East ruffed with the ace of spades, declarer would simply discard his club king. And if East elected to discard a heart (as he actually did) or a club, declarer would again toss away his king of clubs.

Thus, as declarer played the hand, his only losers were a heart, a club, and a trump to East's ace.

Susan beldout a couple of dollars and three pennies. "Three stores, and that's all I've got left," she said. "Things are so expensive."

"You can say that again," Ron agreed. "But how much did you spend?"

WAR DECLARED BY INDIANS

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPI) — Indians occupying this tiny hamlet declared war on the United States Sunday after proclaiming it an independent nation seeking recognition by the United Nations.

An FBI agent was wounded in an exchange of gunfire.

"We consider ourselves under attack and at war with the U.S., said Russell Means, a leader of the American Indian Movement which has held Wounded Knee since Feb. 27.

Means instructed armed followers to "shoot to kill" FBI agents attempting to enter the hamlet to make arrests.

Honeymoon Ends for $

Times News Services

BRUSSELS — Six of the strongest currencies in Europe ended a 29-year relationship with the U.S. dollar today.

The six countries agreed to "float" their own money on world markets when they reopen seven days from now, after a record 17-day shutdown to give governments time to solve the latest world monetary crisis.

In bank-to-bank trading today, the dollar dipped sharply but recovered strongly in reaction to the revaluing of the West German mark and the six nations decision.

Trading was nervous but fairly-brisk. Bankers and money operators appeared to have adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

YEN FLOATING

In Japan, monetary officials said they would continue to float the yen, at least until they saw how the U.S. dollar reacted to the European action.

The six Common Market nations announcing they would join the float included West Germany, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Denmark. Five non-market nations, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Austria and Switzerland, were expected to join before March 19.

Three other market nations, Britain, Ireland and Italy, did not join the float. They already were floating separately on money markets.

In addition to joining the float, West Germany announced it would revalue the mark upward by three per cent in dealings with its European partners.

The two moves were designed to calm the latest international monetary storm that broke last month with a flood of unwanted dollars.

Visitors' Bureau To Fold

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

At an emergency meeting this morning the directors of the Greater Victoria Visitors' Bureau voted unanimously for liquidation of the bureau at the annual meeting to be held at the end of the month.

The move came hard on the heels of the decision of Victoria city council Thursday to cut this year's grant from $60,000 to $51,778. The city also notified the bureau that instead of continuing to pay $2 for every $1 contributed by the bureau's member businesses in 1974 this would be cut to $1 per membership dollar.

Informed of the directors' recommendation for wiping out the bureau, Mayor Peter Pollen said:

"This is a most petulant and short-sighted response. They should be looking at the situation in a much more positive manner."

Director Bob Wright admitted today that part of the bureau's failure had been that its board, while selling well to strangers, had "not done a good selling job in our own backyard."

He said that if the 360 members voted for liquidation at the March-end meeting — and he was assured they would — John W. Hogg of Campbell, Donegani and Wood would be appointed liquidator.

He said there would be a "gradual windup" with the bureau being phased out of existence at the end of the tourist season, Sept. 30.

Ald. Percy Frampton, city representative who also serves as the board's treasurer, asked if the bureau would continue until then if the city had a change of heart and withdrew the grant recently passed.

Davidson said this was an "iffy question" and one that could only be dealt with if and when this happened.

Pollen, informed about this, said the city has no intention of withdrawing its support of the bureau:

"The city of Victoria recognizes the importance of tourism asd is doing great things to ensure the accommodation of people coming to Victoria in the form of redevelopment of the Inner Harbor, malls, parks and beautification. Council believes we should work to support the tourist industry but the industry itself should obviously assume its responsibilities by paying a more equitable share of the over-all financing of the bureau."

A car dealer, Pollen said, "Nobody gives money to advertise my business asd I employ 97 people. This is of indirect benefit to the city. The citizens of Victoria have given grants to the tourist bureau with virtually no strings attached.

"We have no intention of withdrawing but the industry itself must pay on a more equitable basis with the citizens of Victoria."

In today's resolution passed by the board it was voted that

CASE COUNTERS FARMER PROTEST

A demonstration is support of the proposed B.C. Land Commission Act will be held Thursday at 12:30 p.m. on the steps of the legislature just an hour before 3,000 farmers assemble for their protest.

Derrick Mallard, president of CASE (Citizens' Action to Save the Environment), said today his group will be joined by individuals and other environmental groups concerned about the preservation of farmland in B.C.

The B.C. government, he said, is the first to "take the bull by the horns" in recognizing that the "most important environmental need of all is having sufficient food for our expanding population."

He said he agreed the wording of the act was poor and that the right of appeal "should be included" but added that most farmers are upset only because they can't sell their land for high profits.

Gaullists Hold Power Grip In Close Vote

Times News Services

PARIS — France has given another five-year mandate to the political heirs of the late Charles de Gaulle, but it is certain to be Gaullism with a difference.

Although the Gaullist party emerged from its most formidable election test in 15 years of rule with a majority of at least 29 seats in the 490-seat parliament, the Socialist-Communist left matched the government parties vote for vote — each side apparently capturing 46 per cent of the popular vote in the record poll.

And the Gaullists suffered setbacks in the defeats of Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann and Justice Minister Rene Pleven by younger Socialist candidates. They will almost certainly lose their cabinet posts.

The Gaullist victory averted a constitutional crisis. A leftist majority in the assembly would have been at loggerheads with President Georges Pompidou, whose term runs until 1976, and this probably would have paralysed the government.

With only four districts still outstanding, Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin announced early today that the government parties had taken 274 seats, 28 more than were needed for outright victory.

The combined left had 181 seats, with the Socialists outscoring the Communists by 89 to 73 seats. The left recorded most of the ground it lost in the 1968 Gaullist landslide and regained the workmanlike opposition standing it built up in a 1967 assembly ballot. An extreme rightwing group won three seats.

The centre reformers, led by former presidential candidate Jean Lecanuet and the tempestuous Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber, won 28 seats and had excellent chances of reaching their 30-strong target by the time the election dust has settled.

1,000 Men Off At Alberni

NEWS BRIEFS

PORT ALBERNI — Just over 1,000 workers at MacMillan Bloedell's Somass sawmill and shingle mill remained off work today in a dispute which erupted Friday over pay rates for mechanics.

Employees and officials of Local 1-85, International Woodworkers of America, were meeting this morning.

E. P. Demens, manager of the company's lumber and shingle production on Vancouver Island, said MB "cannot and will not tolerate the continuation of work disruption by these small, self-interested groups."

He said operations in the Port Alberni area — where the company has four mills and three logging divisions — have been almost constantly involved "in some form of labor strife" since the last coast agreement was signed between timber companies and the IWA.

"Small self-interested groups have attempted to gain concessions for themselves by slowdowns and other forms of wildcat strikes with complete disregard for the interests of their fellow employees, the community, the company and the provisions of the labor contract and law," said Demens.

The company said less than 10 men, carrier mechanics employed to maintain mobile equipment, refused to work at their regular jobs unless granted special wage increases.

The mechanics have been suspended "until such time as they are prepared to work as required in a normal manner in keeping with the terms and conditions of the master agreement which their officers signed on their behalf."

The walkout began Friday after the company suspended the mechanics. No statement was issued by the Port Alberni IWA.

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuter) — Two men accused of killng 15 persons by setting a local night club on fire fought with a 12-man police guard in a courtroom brawl here today.

John Andre Stuart, 32, and John Richard Finch, 28, struggled violently with police and repeatedly interrupted the reading of arson and murder charges against them.

Civil Service Strike

LONDON (CP) — About 4,000 members of the Civil and Public Services Asociation said they would disrupt some ports and airports, social security offices, banks and freight depots today with stoppages of three to five days in designated "key" areas to protest planned pay curbs.

Energy Warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The presidents of five U.S. energy associations said today the energy problem is potentially at a point where "the nation is on a collision course with a major energy shortage."

Olympic Error

MUNICH (AP)—The lives of four Israeli hostages, seized by Palestinian Arab commandos during the Munich Olympics, might have been saved if a police rescue squad had been informed that it faced eight instead of five Arab terrorists, an official inquest is reported to have found.

Weapon Talks

GENEVA (Reuter) — Nuclear arms negotiators from the United States and the Soviet Union met here today for the first of a new round of talks on talks on curbing strategic offensive weapons.

Bombing Suspects

LONDON (Reuter) — Charges were to be laid later today against 10 people detained in connection with last Thursday's car bombings in London, a police spokesman said.

Teacher Strike Closes Schools In S. Alberta

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Most schools in rural southern Alberta were closed today as 1,300 teachers went on strike to support contract demands.

It was the first strike by teachers in Alberta this year and affected more than 27,000 students in 18 school districts south of Vulcan to the United States border. Schools in the cities of Lethbridge and Medicine Hat were not affected.

The walkout resulted when negotiations on a new contract between the teachers and the Southern Alberta School Authorities Association broke down.

Bill Cousins, a spokesman for the Lethbridge local of the Alberta Teachers Association, said the ural teachers will be supported fully by city teachers.

Bermuda Hunts Two Gunmen

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) — Police sources said today they were convinced two gunmen were involved in the weekend assassinations of Gov. Sir Richard Sharples and an aide as they walked the governor's dog outside his official residence.

Officials also said they believed there was a direct link between the Saturday slayings and the unsolved shooting death almost exactly six months earlier of police commissioner George Duckett.

But police said they did not know of a motive for the killings and so far did not have any definite suspects.

Ian Kinner, the island's chief secretary, was sworn in as governor immediately after the killings. He immediately ordered a state of emergency, which permitted police to detain suspects without official charges or warrants.

Tourists were allowed to leave after they and their luggage were searched and inspected at the airport and at the docks.

Police said they were working on the theory there was special significance in the fact the two government officials were killed at almost the same hour, on a Saturday, six months apart.

Sharples' death came six months and one day after the murder of Duckett, shot Sept. 9 in the kitchen of his home. His 17-year-old daughter Marcia was shot and wounded in the assassination.

Sharples, 56, and his aide, Capt. Hugh Sayers, 25, were gunned down as they walked the governor's pet Great Dane at about 11:45 p.m. (10:45 p.m. EST) at the end of a dinner party for 12 persons. The dog also died in the bursts of gunfire.

Two Scotland Yard detectives in charge of the Duckett killing returned Sunday to Hamilton to investigate the slayings. Another team of seven detectives was en route today from London.

Police sources said late Sunday they were "convinced that two gunmen rather than one" were responsible for the Saturday slayings.

Flareup in Korea As North Opens Fire

PANMONJOM, Korea (UPI) — North Korean troops opened fire on South Korean soldiers killing two and wounding one other in a border clash last Wednesday, the UN command said today.

It was the first fatal incident along the Korean truce front since September, 1971.

The UN said the incident occurred when five South Korean army civil policemen replacing border markers north of Chorwon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul, came under small arms fire from North Korean positions.

At the 337th meeting of the Korean Military Armistice Commission today, North Korean Army Maj. Gen. Kim Pung-sup termed the charge "groundless" and said the South Koreans were engaged in espionage activities inside the demilitarized zone.

U.S. Marine Corps Lt. Gen. Fred E. Haynes said after the initial firing, the North Koreans refused a call by the south that the two be allowed to be evacuated.

Peronist Leads Argentine Polls

BUENOS AIRES Reuter) — Peronist presidential candidate Hector Campora is well ahead in Sunday's Argentine general election, and still has a good chance of gaining a majority, according to revised figures issued by the interior ministry.

Ministry figures published just before vote-counting was suspended for the night showed that Dr. Campora had won 48.7 per cent of the total vote.

The ministry said this calculation was based on a count of 98 per cent of the votes cast, but an hour later corrected this, saying it based on only about 82 per cent of the total votes.

The turnout appeared to have been around 80 per cent of the 14.1 million registered electors, more than half the population of the country.

Observers said votes still to be counted included many from Buenos Aires province and provincial cities traditionally pro-Peronist, indicating Dr. Campora still had a chance of reaching the 50-per-cent-plus-one total needed to avoid a run-off ballot.

The corrected figures were based on results from 45,085 of the more than 55,000 polling stations, indicating that about 1.5 million votes had still to be counted.

Dr. Campara's major rival was the Radical party's Ricardo Balbin, with 21 per cent of the vote. There were seven other presidential candidates.

BY ANY OTHER . . .

The department of rehabilitation and social improvement will change its name to the department of human resources at the end of the current legislative session, the minister Norman Levi said today.

The new name comes from a suggestion list of over 200 names, Levi said. The formal change will take place through a special act.

Levi said the new name is intended to be "more indicative of the kind of thing we are trying to do with the department."

The suggestions came from people working in the field, he said, and from a survey his department carried out of government departments throughout North America. California has a department off Human Resources, Levi said.

The cost of the change is not expected to be "all that much," the minister said. He added that the B.C. department had had the tongue-twisting name at one time of Department of Rehabilitation, Social Improvement and Human Resources. The last two words had been dropped to make things easier, he said.

The department has also been known in the past as the department of social welfare.

Ads a Headache

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission accused makers of leading aspirin products today of false and misleading advertising. It asked that they devote 25 per cent of future ads to admitting it.

WAR DECLARED BY INDIANS

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPI) — Indians occupying this tiny hamlet declared war on the United States Sunday after proclaiming it an independent nation seeking recognition by the United Nations.

An FBI agent was wounded in an exchange of gunfire.

"We consider outselves under attack and at war with the U.S., said Russell Means, a leader of the American Indian Movement which has held Wounded Knee since Feb. 27.

Means instructed armed followers to "shoot to kill" FBI agents attempting to enter the hamlet to make arrests.

Honeymoon Ends for $

Times News Services

BRUSSELS — Six of the strongest currencies in Europe ended a 29-year relationship with the U.S. dollar today.

The six countries agreed to "float" their own money on world markets when they reopen seven days from now, after a record 17-day shutdown to give governments time to solve the latest world monetary crisis.

In bank-to-bank trading today, the dollar dipped sharply but recovered strongly in reaction to the revaluing of the West German mark and the six nations decision.

Trading was nervous but fairly brisk. Bankers and money operators appeared to have adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

YEN FLOATING

In Japan, monetary officials said they would continue to float the yen, at least until they saw how the U.S. dollar reacted to the European action.

The six Common Market nations announcing they would join the float included West Germany, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Denmark. Five non-market nations, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Austria and Switzerland, were expected to join before March 19.

Three other market nations, Britain, Ireland and Italy, did not join the float. They already were floating separately on money markets.

In addition to joining the float, West Germany announced it would revalue the mark upward by three per cent in dealings with its European partners.

The two moves were designed to calm the latest international monetary storm that broke last month with a flood of unwanted dollars.

Visitors' Bureau To Fold

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

At an emergency meeting this morning the directors of the Greater Victoria Visitors' Bureau voted unanimously for liquidation of the bureau at the annual meeting to be held at the end of the month.

The move came hard on the heels of the decision of Victoria city council Thursday to cut this year's grant from $60,000 to $51,778. The city also notified the bureau that instead of continuing to pay $2 for every $1 contributed by the bureau's member businesses in 1974 this would be cut to $1 per membership dollar.

Informed of the directors' recommendation for wiping out the bureau, Mayor Peter Pollen said:

"This is a most petulant and short-sighted response. They should be looking at the situation in a much more positive manner."

Director Bob Wright admitted today that part of the bureau's failure had been that its board, while selling well to strangers, had "not done a good selling job in our own backyard."

He said that if the 360 members voted for liquidation at the March-end meeting — and he was assured they would — John W. Hogg of Campbell, Donegani and Wood would be appointed liquidator.

He said there would be a "gradual windup" with the bureau being phased out of existence at the end of the tourist season, Sept. 30.

Ald. Percy Frampton, city representative who also serves as the board's treasurer, asked if the bureau would continue until then if the city had a change of heart and withdrew the grant recently passed.

Davidson said this was an "if'y question" and one that could only be dealt with if and when this happened.

Pollen, informed about this, said the city has no intention of withdrawing its support of the bureau:

"The city of Victoria recognizes the importance of tourism and is doing great things to ensure the accommodation of people coming to Victoria in the form of redevelopment of the Inner Harbor, malls, parks and beautification. Council believes we should work to support the tourist industry but the industry itself should obviously assume its responsibilities by paying a more equitable share of the over-all financing of the bureau."

A car dealer, Pollen said, "Nobody gives money to advertise my business and I employ 97 people. This is of indirect benefit to the city. The citizens of Victoria have given grants to the tourist bureau with virtually no strings attached.

"We have no intention of withdrawing but the industry itself must pay on a more equitable basis with the citizens of Victoria."

In today's resolution passed by the board it was voted that

C.A.S.E. COUNTERS FARMER PROTEST

A demonstration is support of the proposed B.C. Land Commission Act will be held Thursday at 12:30 p.m. on the steps of the legislature just an hour before 3,000 farmers assemble for their protest.

Derrick Mallard, president of C.A.S.E (Citizens' Action to Save the Environment), said today his group will be joined by individuals and other environmental groups concerned about the preservation of farmland in B.C.

The B.C. government, he said, is the first to "take the bull by the horns" in recognizing that the "most important environmental need of all is having sufficient food for our expanding population."

He said he agreed the wording of the act was poor and that the right of appeal "should be included" but added that most farmers are upset only because they can't sell their land for high profits.

On Growing the Beard: It's Not All That Easy

The real problem in growing a beard is not, as you might think, the initial seven-day itch though that is, Lord knows, a fearsome thing. The real problem is the abuse a man must endure from friends, loved ones and, often, perfect strangers.

I've encountered nothing so vulnerable to the generation gap, for example. Any growing boy may grow a beard for any reason, to hide a weak chin or a mottled, post-puberty complexion or simply to add to his years. Nobody questions his motives. But let a — how shall I say? — a more mature man embark on that venture and he's fair game for everyone. It's just naturally assumed that his cultivation of a beard is a sign of vanity or posturing or the manifestation of some kind of identity crisis.

The simple, honest truth is that I am growing this beard because of a week's vacation in which I felt no compelling need to shave, there being no prying eyes but my wife's. True, she remarked, on Day Five, that I was beginning to look like a summer cottage mattress, but made no other overtly discouraging remark.

It was an exercise that led naturally to some long thoughts about shaving in general. Having worked it out, I was astonished to find that a man who shaves regularly for 50 years will have spent a grand total of 125 days — 125 days! — scraping the stubble from his face. That alone would be rationale enough for a man to let it grow. So I did.

Back at the office, however, it became more a matter of defiance. In the face of the city editor's snide remark that I looked like a bum getting over a three-months' drunk and his suggestion that I keep a half-emptied bottle of cheap Logana on my desk to complete the picture, I'd no alternative but to tough it out, itch or not.

It was the managing editor, himself, who wondered if I was going through some kind of identity crisis. While this was certainly not my reason for growing a beard, I had to admit, it may well be the result of it.

Only last night, removing a TV dinner from the oven (and, come to think of it, did my wife choose this particular time to visit her Vancouver pal because of this hair?) I felt suddenly that I was in charge of the torpedo tube of a nuclear submarine, a fantasy that lasted no more than 30 seconds but may possibly be linked to this unaccustomed growth.

Still, even smooth-shaven, I have had these moments all my life and I daresay they come to most men. Some mornings, especially when it's raining, I find that when I'm fiddling with the choke and windshield swipe buttons they become the controls of a giant 747 and I am taking off for Bora-Bora. Will a beard make me even more vulnerable to such vapors of the mind? I wish I knew.

As for vanity or posturing I can say, in all honesty, that they do not figure in it. Whatever we do with ourselves, with our clothes or our hair or anything else, is really a form of image-making, one way or another. The most casually-dressed, denim-clad man is as guilty of it as the immaculate fashion-plate. It is only when you suddenly, dramatically switch images that you draw attention to it. And beard-growing, you may take it from me, is the attention-getter to end all attention-getters.

One reason for this is that a beard does not happen overnight. Oh, my, no. It is a slow, agonizing process in which the physical appearance induces reactions ranging from mild distaste to outright loathing, rather like the symptoms of Chinese Rot.

The beard-grower requires enormous will power, facing himself in the cruel mirror each morning, to keep from the swift solution of lather and blade. One may see ahead, perhaps, the day when it will be a natty, well-manicured Van Dyke. For the moment it is only a kind of obscene fungus, as anti-social as the deliberate cultivation of weeds.

Then why, you may ask, do I persist in seeing it through to some sort of fruition? Could it possibly be that, perversely, I'm secretly enjoying all this attention, even in the form of abuse? It makes a chap wonder.

Gov't Favors Saanich Greenbelt

A proposal to establish a greenbelt system around the urban area of Saanich stands a good chance of being approved under the Land Commission Act now before the legislature.

Resource Minister Robert Williams in an interview said the greenbelt fund to be administered by the proposed land commissin would only be used to purchase land that is part of a planned greenbelt system.

"There will be no longer any scatter-gun land acquisitions," he said. "The fund will be used to establish valid greenbelts."

Asked to give an example, Williams said the Saanich proposal rejected by the Social Credit government would be a plan the land commission would give first priority for the Greater Victoria area.

Saanich submitted to the former government a proposal in May 1972 suggesting an investment of $6.2 millions to acquired a 1,885 acres of greenbelt.

The greenbelt proposal calls for an extension of a green space plan which Saanich has been developing from the lower Colquitz River at Portage Inlet to the Marigold junction.

According to Williams the government's policy for the greenbelt fund will go far beyond the highway-strip concept of the former government which bought scattered pieces of property here and there along a highway.

Last year the application of $25 million greenbelt fund was strongly criticized by municipalities and regional districts as it didn't provide much needed open spaces around large urban areas.

Williams said the fund has only been used to acquire property pending under the old government.

"There were two exceptions," he added. "We did acquire two areas to complete two essential projects.

He said one of these was a key parcel of land at the mouth of the Tlell River in the Queen Charlotte Islands necessary to round off a proposed provincial park.

The other was a large farm at Kettle River, east of Grand Forks and adjacent to provincial forest lands. The land was needed to establish a large game reserve.

Building Rush Strains Bylaws

By RONALD MORGAN
Times Staff

A developer participating in Victoria's rush to build apartment blocks has found city authorities willing to stretch their own bylaws to the breaking point.

In answer to a series of calls fron angry tenants, a Times news team conducted an investigation and found these facts:

One: a major apartment development at 45 Boyd Street near the waterfront in James Bay has been more than half filled with tenants although the necessary occupancy permit has not been granted by the city. This is a contravention of the city building bylaw.

Two: self-contained studio suites within larger suites are not equipped with two cubic feet of cooled food storage space, in contravention of the city's rental accommodation bylaw.

Three: although tenants were first installed in the building Jan. 22, janitorial and garbage service started only in March, a contravention of the same bylaw.

Tenants also complain that they are being required to pay full rent for their apartments even though promised services at the building have not been, or are not being delivered. A sauna bath, billed as a luxury extra in advertisements for the building, has not been installed.

Blacktopped parking space at the rear of the building, accessible only by a narrow lane called Lewis Street, was late being completed, as was the building's intercom system for the front door. An elevator has not been installed.

Investigation Underway

The city's engineering department, charged with overseeing the construction and maintenance of such apartment buildings, is currently investigating reports that the self-contained studio suites within larger suites are being rented out separately from the suite they are included in.

A. J. James, chief city building inspector, showed a Times reporter Thursday a pink form which he said was the occupancy permit for the 63 apartments at 45 Boyd Street, 36 of which are already rented out, plus an extra two tenants in self-contained studios.

James said the occupancy permit had not yet been granted. He explained that such permits could be waived "on a technicality" because an inspector required completion of minor items.

He admitted that it is illegal for an apartment building to be occupied without first being granted an occupancy permit.

Bill Jorgensen, deputy city engineer, said an occupancy permit for an apartment building might not be granted "because of a detail." He cited as an example the possibility that crystal chandeliers, included in plans for the building, might be missing because of late delivery.

He said an occupancy permit calls for inspections of a building by building, electricity, plumbing and firedepartment officials.

Tenants Warned: Owner

Albert B. Bekes, president of Chez Marc el Enterprises Ltd., and owner of The Albion at 45 Boyd, said there could be no complaints about his building "because it's not finished."

He claimed that "anybody who moved in" was warned the building was not completed and might face delays in completion.

He also said, in an interview today, that he was under financial pressure to get the building occupied. The mortgage company, which he named as Cumberland Mortgage Corporation Ltd. of Vancouver, required 85 per cent occupancy and completion of the building before they would release money on the project.

(Dennis Matson of Cumberland Mortgage said in a telephone interview from Vancouver that he knew Albert Bekes. He said he would not confirm what Bekes said.)

Bekes said he did not yet know how much the building had cost. He said it might be between $600,000 and $70,000.

He said 15 to 20 apartments had been occupied.

"This building is my pension plan," Bekes said.

Bekes said "lots of inspections" had been made at 45 Boyd Street. He said he did not know he did not have an occupancy permit.

Kit Oakley, a tenant at the apartment building, said she took occupancy on Jan. 22 with instructions to refer people seeking accommodation to Bekes. She said she understood she was engaged as an assistant "renter", helping the landlord engage tenants. She said she had done such work many times before.

Miss Oakley said tenants were not warned the building might not be completed for some time. She said they were assured the building would be finished by March 1.

She told The Times she was dissatisfied with the situation at the building because she did not intend to "be a patsy for anybody."

A planning department official said the number of apartments in Victoria has nearly doubled since 1966. In that year there were 9,625 units. By this year there were 7,925 more. He said apartments form 62 per cent of dwelling units in Victoria.

RENTAL PROBES PLANNED

By WAYNE HARDING
Times Staff

Jim Nelson, director of the Victoria Rental Aid Service, says he will start a private agency to investigate complaints of tenants against landlords because the city-supported Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau refuses to do the job.

Nelson says the agency will be called the Rental Investigation Board and will be made of himself and two other persons not yet identified.

He charged that the Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau will "only give advice" and refuses to investigate complaints.

He said the Bureau is not fulfilling the section of the bylaw which established it last November which gives the bureau the responsibility "to receive and investigate complaints of conduct in contravention of legislation governing tenancies."

NO SATISFACTION

Nelson claims the rental aid service has received "many, many" complaints from tenants who have not received satisfaction from the bureau.

"I want to know where that $12,000 is going," Nelson said referring to the amount allocated by council for operation of the bureau during its first year.

"I also want to know why Woods (John Woods, a member of the bureau) will not help these people when their landlords have broken the law," Nelson said.

Nelson said his board will follow up tenant complaints to the point of initiating prosecutions.

'NOT FAIR'

Woods, who mans the bureau's office, said he did not feel Nelson's judgment was fair.

"I would be very interested if he could substantiate that" there are people being turned away by the bureau.

Woods said he felt the bureau is complying with

Woods said he felt the bureau is complying with the terms of reference under which it was set up.

The bureau is made up of Brian Tobin, editor of the Times; Margaret Richards, a housewife and twice-defeated aldermanic candidate; Wes Dickie of the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association; and Woods who is retired and teachers apartment management at Camosun College.

Nelson is an unemployed equipment operator who started the rental aid service last year with the help of "incentive payments" from welfare. His private agency places low-income people in low-cost housing at no charge to his clients.

REGIONAL CLINICS FORESEEN

A community health centre in the Colwood-Langford area may be one of the health facilities provided if the Capital Region Hospital Board's $22.5 million hospital referendum set for March 31 gets voter approval, Board Chairman Art Young said today.

At a press conference this morning, after signing the bylaw authorizing the expenditure, Health Minister Dennis Cocke urged all voters in the Capital Region to support the referendum, and said he has asked the board to be as "flexible as possible" in how it spends the money.

Cocke said the delivery of health care is in such a state of flux that no one can predict how services will be provided one year from now, let alone in 10 years' time. For that reason he has suggested the board look at "innovative ideas" such as the provision of community health centres.

Esquimalt NDP MLA Jim Gorst welcomed Young's suggestion that the Colwood-Langford area is a likely location for such a centre. Gorst commented that the facility could be invaluable in serving the needs of the rapidly growing area, with a population including large numbers of young and elderly people.

Cocke said he didn't want electors to think they were being asked to approve the spending entirely from taxes on property. He pointed out the provincial government is providing 60 per cent of that sum.

Young noted the maximum amount local taxpayers will have to pay is about $10 million, which over the total six-year borrowing period would work out to about one mill for the average taxpayer in the district.

"Everyone who knows anything about health in this area is convinced we need this money. If we were going for the whole bundle it would be closer to $40 million," he said.

Young said although the board will keep an open mind on expenditure allocations, the major part will be earmarked for acute care needs — with a priority item being the renovation of "obsolete" facilities at the Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospitals.

"We are behind sadly in many respects. We are getting first-class care in probably third-class facilities. It's an absolute must that those facilities be upgraded," he added.

Disputed Course Discussed

A special meeting has been called this afternoon by the department of education to discuss a Political Science 12 course proposed for Oak Bay senior secondary and rejected by the department.

Oak Bay principal David Voth, school board chairman Peter Bunn and district superintendent A. J. Longmore have been asked to meet with department officials to discuss the controversial course which was approved by the school board two years ago.

The course was rejected by the department at that time and again rejected when the board re-submitted it last month.

J. R. Meredith, the government's superintendent of instructional services, said the meeting was called " to discuss our concerns and their concerns."

He said the department was "most concerned" that young people learn about political thought and the political system in Canada.

He stressed that the decision to reject the locally developed course was made on the advice of the 12-man Provincial Advisory Committee on Secondary School Curriculum, made up of teachers, trustees and other educators.

Meredith said he had spoken to Education Minister Eileen Dailly on the matter and would make a recommendation to her following this afternoon's meeting.

The political science course, drawn up by Oak Bay high, is a study of political thought throughout history.

Victor Sees Logical Growth

. . . elected

Accountant and offfice manager for Victoria Paving Ltd., McCreadie was making his first bid for public office.

"I feel Esquimalt is growing along the most logical avenue," he said. "It's being developed and it's being controlled by the present council in an excellent manner."

Lundgren, of 635 Admirals, a 29-year-old machinist at HMC Dockyard, received 569 votes to McCreadie's 597.

Mrs. Ada Barnes, 66, of 1137 Bewdley, a housewife and secretary-treasurer of the Esquimalt Chamber of Commerce, received 198 votes.

McCreadie, who lives with his wife and three children at 766 Hutchinson, is active in minor sports and is treasurer of the Esquimalt Minor Lacrosse Association.

Voter turnout was 28.8 per cent, compared with 41 per cent in the 1968 byelection when the late Ald. Art Cuthbert was first elected.

Merz said 1,368 ballots were cast, three of which were rejected.

Ellis Enters Civic Race

Bob Ellis, 37-year-old credit bureau manager, confirmed today he will run for city council.

A byelection to fill the aldermanic seat left vacant by the sudden death of Ove Witt has been set for March 31. Malcolm Anderson and Margaret Richards have already declared themselves in the race. All three have run for council before.
